Packages, Money Passed To Crowd; Fairfax Arrest

An overturned car in Fairfax yesterday led to the arrest of a 19-year-old San Francisco youth on suspicion of marijuana possession.

Before his arrest, however, Bruce Belvin Hiebert of 1218 Fell Street, San Francisco, led police on a hillside chase and handed out packages and money to women in the crowd.

The incident began about 12:30 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. Gary Forsythe of San Francisco said they were traveling behind two youths in a Rambler station wagon on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, when for no apparent reason, the car overturned down an embankment.

WALKS TO CAR

The couple said they drove partway down the bank to see if they could assist the youths. Forsythe walked over to the car, but the youths left it, handing three wrapped packages over to Mrs. Forsythe, and took off into the hills.

Fairfax police, responding to the accident call, arrived on the scene amid shouts that "they've gone up the hill," reported Officer John Johnson.

Johnson headed after them and found Hiebert in some bushes, he reported. The other man escaped.

Mrs. Forsythe turned the packages over to police and Johnson reported they contained what appeared to be three kilos of marijuana.

HANDS OVER MONEY

Hiebert was handcuffed and placed in the patrol car. Before he left, he handed a woman in the crowd $660 in cash, police reported.

The woman, Barbara Harrison of Forest Knolls, told police she was a friend of Hiebert's.

Hiebert was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of marijuana possession and bail was set at $1,250, which Hiebert failed to make.

He is scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Iran Rushing Aid To Razed Towns

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI)—Fresh earth tremors shook eastern Iran today where the worst earthquake in the nation's history killed more than 20,000 persons during the weekend and devastated the region "like an atom bomb."

The aftershocks of two massive weekend earthquakes shook those few buildings still standing upright. Rescue officials ignored the light tremors and kept looking for survivors and bodies.

Government officials in Tehran confirmed that more than 20,000 bodies had been found and the Iranian Red Cross, the Red Lion and Sun, said more than 10,000 dead had already been buried.

Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveida, who flew to the disaster area yesterday with five cabinet ministers, struggled to the town of Kakhk where at least 1,000 persons were buried in the rubble of their homes.

"This is the most ghastly scene I have ever looked at," Hoveida said.

Shah Mohammed and the Empress Farah made plans to fly to the disaster area. The quakes ripped up regional airstrips and roads and many parts of the 1,300 square miles of devastated northeastern Iran was cut off from rescue teams.

Air crews flew over the regions and reported whole vast areas showed no signs of life whatsoever.

One pilot reported the quakes leveled the region "like an atom bomb."

In Tehran, more than 5,000 Iranian youths lined up to donate blood for survivors of the quake. Hundreds more did the same in Meshed, which was on the outlying point of the quake.

The quake yesterday destroyed a field hospital in Ferdows and killed hundreds of survivors from the massive temblor Saturday who had arrived there for treatment.

The teams dispatched to the area by plane said more than 50,000 others had been injured in the quakes Saturday and yesterday.

A stunned, sobbing army of more than 100,000 homeless stumbled among the rubbled dust and shattered wooden poles that had been their homes in more than 100 towns and

Liberals Win Czech Seats

PRAGUE (UPI)—Alexander Dubcek, the Czechoslovak Communist Party leader, and his liberal supporters have maneuvered their way to control of a new, expanded 21-member Presidium which had been formed under Kremlin pressure to return pro-Moscow conservatives to power, Czechoslovakian Communist Party sources said today.

Dubcek himself spoke only words of cooperation and warning to the Czechoslovak people. He told them in a lengthy communique from the special Central Committee meeting that the price of complete troop withdrawal would include total end to harassment of occupying forces.

But the sources disclosed today that the 24-hour weekend session created an expanded, 21-man Presidium with at least 11 liberal Dubcek supporters. Of

Johnson Has Quiet Ranch Day

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—President Johnson spent a quiet day yesterday at church and at the LBJ ranch after two days of talks on the Eastern European situation.

Johnson attended early morning services at St. Francis Xavier Roman Catholic Church at Stonewall, Tex., near his ranch, and later at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church at Fredericksburg, Tex.

Arrest Methods Are Questioned

By Jim BREWER

(First of three articles)

Arrest tactics used by the Marin County Drug Abuse Bureau and other local police agencies in apprehending marijuana suspects have stirred some reactions of concern and alarm from other elements of the law enforcement spectrum.

While bookings for marijuana offenses were reaching an all-time county high over the first half of this year, releases for insufficient evidence and illegal arrests have taken a large chunk out of those statistics.

According to statistics compiled by the Independent-Journal, 44 per cent of the 159 adults booked into county jail on various marijuana counts during the first half of 1968 were released without charges or dismissed by the courts, resulting in a felony arrest record for 69 legally innocent persons.

The county drug bureau is widely acclaimed as the agency responsible for the increase in arrests. Likewise, the release rate reflects the presence of that county-wide agency.

During the first night of the widely-publicized February narcotics roundup, for example, 40 persons were arrested. Fourteen of them were released without charges the next day — 10 of them at the recommendation of the drug bureau itself, according to Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales.

Narcotics officers arrested 15 in San Rafael and Stinson Beach in a double bust on June 1. No complaint was filed against 12 of them. The bureau raided a San Anselmo home Aug. 8, arresting six and confiscating quantities of marijuana and LSD. Five were set free the next day.

These examples characterize the pattern of marijuana raids in Marin by the agency created to reduce narcotics traffic in this county. How they do it, however, has become a matter of some controversy among those who must continue the judicial process.

It revolves around a thing called "probable cause," which legally must exist before a person can be arrested for the commission of a crime and linking the suspect to that crime.

When a group of persons is found in a place where marijuana is present, narcotics officers will arrest them all if none will admit to possession. It will be left to the district attorney to decide who should be prosecuted, according to Lt. James C. Schwedhelm, the man in charge of the drug bureau.

While the courts are concerned not only with guilt and innocence but with the legality of obtained evidence, the drug bureau is primarily concerned with making legal arrests in its drive to remove drugs from the county scene.

The role of the bureau, Schwedhelm says, is "to clean up illicit drug traffic. There is a difference between legal arrests and legal seizure of evidence and our department is concerned with legal arrests," he said.

Narcotics officers are not always able to make a decision

Ross Boy Shot, Injured, Fighting Off Hold-Up Man

An 18-year-old Ross boy was shot through the shoulder this morning as he wrestled with a hold-up man in Marin City.

Diller Ryan of Laurel Grove Avenue, Ross, told sheriff's officers that he and a friend were in their parked car in Marin City when two youths came up to them and demanded money. One of the youths threatened to shoot and waved a gun.

Ryan grabbed the gun and it went off, penerating Ryan's shoulder and lodging in the roof of his car. He was accompanied by John Osterloh of 22 Southwood Avenue, Ross.

Ryan drove himself to Marin General Hospital where he reported the accident at 10:42 a.m. The extent of his injuries was not immediately known.

The shooting occurred at about 10:30 a.m., according to Osterloh. He said he and Ryan, who is the son of Dr. Charles Diller Ryan, had gone to Marin City to visit a friend.

The sheriff's office had no information as to possible suspects.

Army Gets Missile Site Study

Evaluation reports which will determine which of three proposed sites will be tentatively selected for a Bay Area anto-ballistic missile base have been submitted to the Army Sentinel Systems Command in Huntsville, Ala.

The reports, submitted by the Sacramento division of the Army Corps of Engineers and by Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., analyze the engineering and community suitability of the three sites — Angel Island and Wolfback Ridge in Marin County and San Pablo Ridge in Contra Costa County.

NOT PUBLIC

The conclusions and recommendations of the reports were not made public.

Alfred J. Geandrot Jr., chief of the corps' military engineering branch in Sacramento, said his staff had studied the three sites to determine topography, ease of access and construction, availability of utilities and other engineering considerations.

Soil drillings, originally scheduled to coincide with the other engineering studies, have not been made, Geandrot said.

MOST SUITABLE

Sentinel headquarters will select one site as the most suitable, then order soils tests for that particular site, Geandrot said. If the tests show the site to be unsuitable, geologically, the second most suitable site will be tested, he explained.

He said he did not believe the tests had been delayed because of the state's reluctance to grant drilling rights for Angel Island.

On July 30, state Resources Director Norman B. Livermore Jr. said, in a letter to Supervisor Peter Behr, that the Army would have to go to court and condemn the island if it wished to do any drilling or grading work.

Creed B. Card, chief of the corps real estate division in Sacramento, said the Army could and probably would condemn the island to make the soils tests, if the island is con-

Arts Festival Closing Today

A crowd, gathered from all over the Bay Area, converged on Sausalito today for the final day of the Sausalito Arts Festival, creating a downtown scene described by one police officer as "body-to-body humanity."

Albert Garvey, fair director, reported 5,500 paid admissions Saturday, 8,000 yesterday and anticipated 12,000 more by the time the show ended tonight. The total number far exceeded that, he said, if one included the hordes of children admitted without charge to the gayly decorated, painting-hung and sculpture-strewn Bank of America parking lot.

Meanwhile the sunny streets were paved with people.

The nine-man police force accumulated long hours of overtime, posted at key intersections to keep traffic mov-

The victim was Suzanne Scanlan of 595 Bridgeway, Apt. 10, who was thrown head first into a large boulder, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Miss Scanlan, who suffered a broken neck and crshed forehead, was pronounced dead at Marin General Hospital.

Another passenger, Maureen Cullen, 22, of 595 Bridgeway, Apt. 7, who was hitchhiking with Miss Scanlan, suffered a severe

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Biafra Flights

GENEVA (AP) — The International Red Cross Committee announced today that it will start regular daylight relief flights to Biafra in defiance of the Nigerian government's threat to shoot down any planes trying to break the blockade.

The flights will operate from Santa Isabel, the capital of the Spanish island of Fernando Po, where 3,500 tons of food have been collected.

The airlift will be flown by five planes, four of them loaned by the Red Corss societies of Denmark, Finalnd, Norway and Sweden. A sixth will be provided soon by the Dutch Red Cross.

Search For Bodies

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Thirteen bodies have been identified and workers today continued to search for more possible victims of a fire that swept three midtown businesses and apartment buildings Saturday.

Fire officials said three persons may be missing.

Dr. A. S. Williams of the coroners office said nine of the 13 victims were children.

The fire was thought to have started in a tavern, firemen said. The cause was undetermined.

Agnew Golf Date

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Maryland Gov. Spiro T. Agnew arrived in Columbus yesterday evening to keep a golf date with a comedian and two Republican governors.

Officials at Sciote Country Club said the GOP candidate for vice president would play 18 holes today with Bob Hope, Gov. Raymond Shafer of Pennsylvania and their host, Gov. James A. Rhodes of Ohio. Hope is appearing at the Ohio State Fair tonight.

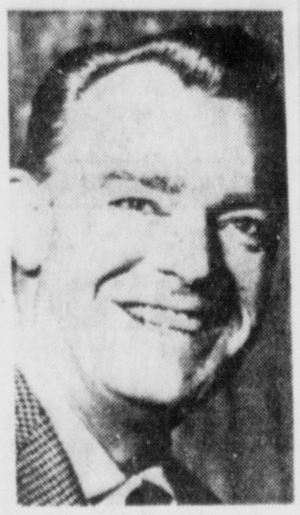
Not Tasty

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a reason why a swimmer often survives an attack by sharks, an expert says:

"Most of them, after they take the first bite, find they don't like the taste and spit it out."

That's the opinion after years of research of Dr. Shelton Applegate, associate curator of vertebrate paleontology at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

In an interview yesterday he said he thinks sharks bite a man in belief he is some weird kind of seal or other fish floudering in the water.



DENNIS O'KEEFE
Actor Dies

Actor O'Keefe Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a guy born in show business, with a longing to act, the success of Dennis O'Keefe surprised him more than anyone else.

"The odds against ever being noticed are so great it almost kills your ambition," the big, breezy Irishman remarked after seven years as a stunt man and extra.

Then Clark Gable spotted him on the set of "Saratoga." A quick screen test and O'Keefe — his name was changed from Edward Vanes Flanagan Jr. — was on his way to star billing in action films and light comedies.

After years of success in motion pictures and television, O'Keefe was stricken by lung cancer at Rochester, Minn., in October 1967. Four months ago, after long illness at his Palm Desert homes, he was moved to St. John's Hosital in Santa Monica.

There he died Saturday night at the age of 60.

O'Keefe brought a breezy, fast-talking style to his roles.

Often he was cast as the sleuth who tracked down bad guys, starring in such pictures as "Chicago Syndicate," "Las Vegas Showdown" and "Inside Detroit." His good looks and irrepressible manner made him an ideal leading man in comedies such as "Topper Returns," "Hold that Kiss" "Unexpected Father," "Affairs of Jimmy Valentine," and "Brewster's Millions."

O'Keefe married actress Steffi Duna in 1940. She and their two children, James, 25, and Julie Benito, three grandchildren and a sister, Hortense Ravenscroft, survive.

U.S. Said Overpopulated

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A noted biologist said yesterday America has more people than it can adequately maintain and looking to the sea for support won't lessen the problem.

"With just 2 per cent of the world's population, we use roughly one half of all the raw materials consumed on the face of the earth each year," Dr. Paul R. Ehrlich of Stanford University told a congregation at Grace Cathedral.

"Our desperate attempts to increase food yields are promoting soil deterioration and contributing to the poisoning of the ecological systems on which our very survival depends. The more we strive to obtain increased yields in the short run, the smaller the yields are likely to be in the long run."

Israeli Plane, Passengers Released

TEL AVIV (AP) — The captain of an Israeli jetliner hijacked by Arab commandos five weeks ago said the treatment given him and 11 other Israelis in Algeria was "correct but far from generous."

Capt. Oded Abarbanell, 42, six other crewmen and five passengers were released by the Algerians Saturday. The $7.5 million Boeing 707 was released several hours later and flown to Rome by French pilots. Algeria released 30 other passengers within five days of the July 23 hijacking over the Mediterranean.

The 12 men arrived yesterday to be greeted by an emotional crowd that cheered and applauded as they stepped off the plane that brought them from Rome. The jetliner arrived shortly afterwards.

"We were told we were the guests of the Algerian government," Abarbanell said, "but we had to clean out the lavatories and washrooms of even the guards' quarters in the army barracks where we were held."

Israel has promised to respond to the release of the plane and prisoners with a "humanitarian gesture." Reports published here said the government planned to release 12 Arab commandos.

Prison Artists

LEAVENWORTH, Kan. (AP) — Inmates of the Leavenworth federal pentitentiary sold $24,075 worth of the paintings they displayed yesterday in the seventh annual art show and sale at the prison.

There were 1,862 paintings displayed by 363 artists, who asked for a total of $52,000 for the works. Prices ranged from $3 to $350 per item.

H. A. Pryse, acting warden, said 300 persons were waiting in line when the doors opened at 8 a.m. and he estimated that 7,500 had seen the exhibits by noon.

Prison officials will not reveal their artists' names. They receive the money their paintings bring, but have to buy their art supplies.

Vietnam Civilians Killed By Rockets

SAIGON (AP) — The Viet Cong marked the 23rd anniversary today of Ho Chi Minh's proclamation of Vietnamese independence with a rocket attack on Da Nang that killed 27 Vietnamese and wounded 46. All but two of the casualties were civilians.

South Vietnamese headquarters said the enemy gunners fired 31 Soviet 122mm rockets into Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city before dawn. The majority landed in residential areas.

It was the most savage rocket attack on the civilian population since a barrage of 30 rockets on Saigon nearly eight weeks ago killed 19 civilians and wounded 116.

Five of the rockets hit the U.S. Navy's administrative headquarters in downtown Da Nang, and five caused light damage at the big airbase, but only one American Marine was wounded. The other military casualty was a South Vietnamese soldier who was killed.

Lighter barrages hit a military post at Dien Ban, 13 miles south of Da Nang, and Tam Ky, a district capital 35 miles southeast of Da Nang. At least five militiamen were wounded in these attacks.

A heavier barrage of 100 rockets and mortars yesterday hit one of two Special Forces camps near Tay Ninh, northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border. The U.S. Command said one American and five Montagnard mercenaries were killed and two Americans and 17 Montagnards were wounded.

It was on Sept. 2, 1945, as World War II was ending, that Ho Chi Minh emerged from relative obscurity and in Hanoi set up the first Republic of Vietnam. Ever since, Hanoi has dated independence from that date, although it was not until 1954 that the French were defeated and Vietnam divided.

Hanoi Radio indicated the anniversary observance would continue through Sept. 4, and Saigon newspapers foresaw a prospect of intensified rocket and mortar attacks during this period. Allied intelligence officers agreed that such attacks appeared likely.

Allied ground forces reported at least 268 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed in ground sweeps in the northern provinces during the weekend. Four Americans were reported killed and 58 wounded.

U.S. B52 bombers dropped nearly 500 tons of bombs on enemy infiltration routes, mostly northwest of Saigon between the capital and the Cambodian border.

U.S. Could Abolish Poverty: Welfare Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare secretary Wilbur J. Cohen says poverty in America has been cut by two-thirds since 1930 and could be abolished by the end of the 1970s.

"We could be on the threshold of the last decade of poverty as a national problem in this nation," the secretary of health, education and welfare said over the weekend.

He addressed the International Symposium on American Policy Toward Poverty at Home and Abroad.

America's poor, Cohen said, has been reduced from 40 per cent of the population in 1930 to less than 13 per cent this year—and from 40 million people in 1960 to an estimated 22 million at the end of the year.

Blast Opens Street Fight In Berkeley

BERKELEY (AP) — A mysterious explosion broke a water main and shattered windows in a construction area last night, touching off another battle between police and young activists on Telegraph Avenue.

Witnesses said explosives ripped a large hole in the back of a complex of small shops under construction on Dwight Way just off Telegraph, the main arterial leading south from the University of California campus.

A crowd estimated by Police Capt. Vic Vieira at 2,000 gathered on Telegraph as police and fire units arrived. Water gushed on the street for about an hour, police said.

Police used tear gas, and several activists also threw tear gas cannisters at policemen, said Vieira.

Eleven persons were arrested and an officer suffered minor injuries. However, said Vieira, none of those arrested had been charged in connection with the explosion.

Koreans Killed

SEOUL (AP) — Three more North Koreans in three clashes with South Korean army units along the demilitarized zone, South Korea's counterespionage command announced today. This brought to 158 the number of North Korean infiltrators killed or captured this year.

Black Power Backers Want Army, Nation

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Delegates to the third national conference on Black Power have voted to support the establishment of a separate black nation, army and political party.

But conference officials said they were not necessarily committed to carrying out the recommendations approved yesterday by the some 3,000 delegates at the close of the four-day conference.

The recommendation for a separate black nation in five southern states came out of a workshop on politics headed by Ron Karenga, leader of a black nationalist group in California.

The conference agreed to a recommendation by the economics workshop that a national black bank be formed. The delegates also supported establishment of a black university geared to the research and teaching of black history.

During the conference, three city policemen were suspended for allegedly shouting obscenities at delegates.

Police Commissioner Frank L. Rizzo said he had suspended the men for 10 days pending a hearing before the police trial board because "an investigation revealed they did what they were accused of, and direct action was taken."

"We're certainly not going to tolerate any misconduct on the part of our police officers," Rizzo said.

Bay Plan Discussion On San Rafael Agenda

The city's position on the San Francisco Bay Conservation and Development Commission's preliminary plan for the bay's future will be considered at San Rafael City Council's meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in city hall.

Held over from the Aug. 26 meeting, the council will discuss the plan which says tideland property owners should not be compensated for not being permitted to fill the bay. Major property owners have condemned the proposal as a violation of traditional property rights.

Councilmen will also discuss a date for reopening hearings on the master drainage plan for East San Rafael. Adoption of the $8,000 plan proposed by civil engineer Carlos E. Gomez, was delayed to give property owners a chance to study it.

Also to be considered will be a resolution approving plans and specifications and a call for bids on sanitary sewer reconstruction on Fifth Avenue, K Street and Center Street.

A resolution approving plans for phase two of the Bret Harte drainage system on DuBois Street will be considered along with a call for bids.

the five Communists ousted from the original 11-man body, four were hard-line Stalinists, they said.

The new lineup had the 11 liberals facing only two staunch conservatives, with the remaining eight members divided between "neutrals" and men whose political leanings are unknown.

The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda neglected to include any comment on composition of the new Presidium in its daily dispatch from Prague. Moscow's immediate reaction was unknown.

Dubcek instead told his people the terms of a Soviet troop withdrawal, which would take place in three stages, is quiet obedience and cooperation on their part.

He also ticked off a list of "necessary" acts of discipline that reverse major points of the liberalization process he started last January—press censorship, legal suppression of non-Communist political groups and economic reliance upon Moscow.

Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorian said today rumors about a Soviet plan to invade Romania "are absolutely without basis."

He referred to President Johnson's speech Friday in which he voiced concern that the Czechoslovakia invasion might be repeated elsewhere in Eastern Europe.

Washington informants said Soviet Ambassador Anatole F. Dobrynin had also denied the rumors to Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

forehead cut when she was thrown from the car, officers reported. She was reported in satisfactory condition at Marin General Hospital today.

The driver, Chaunce Huntington Powers, 18, of 149 Willow Avenue, Corte Madera, who was not thrown from the car, was treated for a cut forehead.

Powers was driving south at 4:40 p.m. and Miss Scanlan, in the right front seat, was attempting to light his cigarette when the car went onto the road shoulder and down the embankment, according to the highway patrol.

The car came to rest upright in the bottom of a ravine 300 feet from the roadway. Officers said the young women were thrown through the open sunroof of the car.

Powers told officers the women were hitchhiking and he picked them up at Muir Beach.

Miss Scanlan was the 22nd person to die in Marin County traffic accidents this year as compared to 21 traffic deaths at this time last year.

Born in Massachusetts, Miss Scanlan had been living in Sausalito for about six months, according to the coroner's office. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Scanlan of Westboro, Mass.

Since moving to Sausalito she had worked as a chambermaid for the Casa Madrona Hotel.

Miss Scanlan's body will be shipped to Massachusetts for funeral services, according to Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel, Mill Valley.

Authorities Study Human Bone Find

Answers to the mystery of a gruesome collection of human bones unearthed yesterday by two Fairfax dogs were being sought today by county authorities.

A human skull with a hank of hair, part of a vertebrae and an ear were brought home by the collies to their owners, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew H. Kerr of 2781 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

The Kerrs turned the bones over to the Marin County Sheriff's Department, who began a search for the rest of the body. Constable Michael McLean combed the Kerr's four-acre wooded property yesterday with bloodhounds but found nothing.

Inspector Michael Melovich said that until an autopsy is completed, he cannot tell whether the bones belong to a man or woman or how long they had lain in the woods. "My guess is that they are only three or four months old," he said.

Possibility that the remains may be those of a Fairfax inventor, John Howard Geiger, 57, missing from his 2575 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard home since late June is being investigated.

"Until we find out more about bones, this is only a guess," Melovich added.

Forensic and dental studies of the skull are to be made.

QUAKE

villages devastated by the quakes.

The toll of dead, injured and homeless far surpassed that of the nation's last major killer quake which killed 12,000 persons just six years ago.

Worst hit in the weekend quakes was the village of Kakhk which together with another settlement, Dashtbayaz, lost more than 6,000 killed out of a population of 8,000, officials said.

An additional 2,000 residents were known to have been killed in the township of Ferdows, hit badly saturday and then razed by yesterday's second shock wave, responsible sources said.

The Red Lion and Sun Society, Iran's Red Cross, reported 8,222 bodies recovered and 2,962 persons injured in towns near the Soviet-Afghan borders hit by the first quake at midafternoon Saturday.

More than 100,000 were left homeless when their mud huts with stones piled atop the roofs collapsed with frightening swiftness.

Many of the devastated villages had no communications, no running water, no sanitary facilities. Both quakes centered in mountainous Khorassan Province, which has a population of 1.8 million.

Word of yesterday's tremor, only slightly less than the .8 Richter magnitude shock of Saturday, came in a dramatic telegraph message from the town of Birjand.

"The earth is shaking under my feet," the telegraph operator in the community of 25,000 tapped out in Morse code. "My hands are trembling...the entire communications system is collapsing...."

Then silence.

The towns of Gonabad and Ghayen reported up to 80 per cent destruction following the second quake. Birjand was nearly razed.

"The earthquake hit with such force I thought it was the end of the world," said a survivor in Kakha.

Forklift Used To Take Engine

A thief used a forklift to haul a 600-pound engine worth approximately $300 from Anderson Truck Repair, 61 Jordan Street, San Rafael between 7 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m. Thursday, police reported.

They said the engine, taken from an open repair shop at the rear of the firm, was loaded on a forklift parked nearby, hauled a short distance and placed in a vehicle outside a gate surrounding the shop.

A key apparently was used to unlock the padlocked gate leading to the shed, police said.

Mendoza Sr. The school remained in existence until its merger this year with the West Marin School District.

Bailout Safety Devices Take Top Space Priority

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — To save astronauts from a disabled spaceship, the United States has decided that for the foreseeable future a ground-based rescue rocket is too slow and too costly. Instead, it is studying bailout escape devices which spacemen can ride to earth.

Also under consideration are several suggestions for retrieving spacemen stranded on the moon, including a small flying machine that they could launch to a rendezvous with a spaceship in lunar orbit.

IN FUTURE

No matter that approaches are taken, an operational system won't be available for several years. Dr. George E. Mueller, associate administrator for manned space flight, said the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will not be ready to recommend final design of a rescue or escape system until mid-1969.

Until something is perfected, the space agency will concentrate on making spaceships as safe as possible, including considerable duplication of critical systems.

Phil H. Bolger, deputy safety director in NASA's Office of Manned Space Flight, said, "We define the most likely emergencies and effects and then design around and against them."

A TRAGEDY

A tragedy and near-tragedy focused attention on the problem. The Gemini 8 pilots had a close brush with death when their spacecraft spun out of control in 1966. Skillful flying saved them. The Apollo 1 three-man crew was unable to escape when its spacecraft burst into flames on a Cape Kennedy launch pad last year.

The fire resulted in a complete overhaul of the Apollo vehicle, now scheduled for its first manned flight in October.

After Gemini 8's tumbling trip, NASA contracted with several industrial firms to explore all aspects of space rescue and escape. It also compared notes with the Air Force which is considering such systems for its military-oriented Manned Orbiting Laboratory.

Bolger reported that three potential emergencies were described: equipment failure, human error, and collision with a meteor or other orbiting craft. Fire, explosion and loss of pressure were listed as the main dangers.

Study of large Air Force and NASA rockets showed that as many as six days might be required to effect a launch and rescue from the ground. Under best conditions, the time would be several hours.

The Rand Corp. estimated that a manned rescue system, launched from the ground, could cost as much as $3 billion to perfect. Rand said an on-board escape system might cost as little as $250 million.

Aerospace Corp. concluded that a rocket rescue system would be far more expensive and cumbersome, and less responsive, than a system that the astronauts would carry with them.

Several firms have submitted ideas for space "life rafts"—capsule-like devices that astronauts could crawl into, eject from a disabled ship and then ride in orbit until help arrived from the ground.

But lately, the space agency has emphasized bailout devices that the astronauts can ride back to earth. Although much simpler than a regular spacecraft, they would have their own retrorocket system for re-entry, oxygen and other life support equipment, heat shield, parachutes and communications capability.

General Electric Co. has developed an erectable one-man vehicle called MOOSE, for Manned Orbital Operations Safety Equipment.

An endangered astronaut first would don a maximum-protection suit, to the back of which would be attached the MOOSE unit, oxygen tanks and a parachute.

After removing the unit from its container, the astronaut would unfold a six-foot plastic bag to which is bonded a quarter-inch heat shield. He would step into the bag and a harness and then zip the bag closed. As he pushed away from the crippled spaceship, he would activate two cylinders that fill the bag with foam so that it forms a solid wall around the astronaut's back and sides, separating his body from the heat shield.

The astronaut and his bathtub-shaped cocoon then would be in their own orbit. By sighting on the earth's horizon he would align the cocoon at the proper angle for firing the Moose retrorocket. After penetrating the atmosphere, the Moose parachute would open at about 30,000 feet and he would drift to earth. The system is designed for land or water landings.

General Electric also has done preliminary work on a three-man capsule based on a similar principle.

Lockheed Missiles & Space Co. is working under an eight-month $200,000 NASA contract to define plans for a three-man bailout system for use in space stations planned in the 1970s. Project officials said they expected the final design will be an escape capsule that attaches to the outside of the orbiting station, with entry through an airlock leading from the main cabin.

Bailout systems probably would be restricted to orbital flights not exceeding an altitude of 600 miles. The higher a spacecraft is, the more heat it must absorb on re-entry through the atmosphere.

So extensive study is underway on possible escape systems for craft operating beyond 600 miles, such as voyages to the moon or planets.

Rand suggested that future large spacecrafts be compartmented, with the crew spread among several separate modules hooked together. In case of trouble in one section, the astronauts could hurry to one or more of the safe modules, detach them and either continue the journey or return to earth.

Early lunar landing flights charted by the United States involve sending a three-man Apollo ship into moon orbit, with two of the pilots riding a lunar module to the surface. When they complete their exploration, they will launch the lunar module and rendezvous with the Apollo ship for the return to earth.

If the lunar module fails to lift off, it has been suggested that the two astronauts could carry along a lunar flying vehicle that looks something like a large tricycle. Such a vehicle, under study by Bell Aerosystems, would be used primarily to help the astronauts get around on the moon's surface, but also could be used as an emergency launch device to rejoin the main Apollo ship.

Cal Exposition Drops Executive In Economy Move

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Officials of the California Exposition and Fair, faced with "disappointing" attendance and lower revenues, have eliminated the job of executive officer to the fair's executive committee.

The fair opened its first season last Monday at its new $20 million Cal Expo site on the north shore of the American River.

The committee, in a move it said was aimed to increase efficiency of the operation, eliminated the job of executive officer Stanley B.Fowler, who also is assistant director of the state Department of General Services.

Humphery, Muskie Views Differ On Convention Police Methods

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie have taken differing tacks in the controversy over Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's handling of protest demonstrations last week.

Muskie, the Democrats' vice presidential nominee, said yesterday adequate police preparation was needed for disorder threatened by the demonstrations. But he stressed a need for restraint and safeguards against over-reaction.

Police, Muskie said, should "have the patience to make a distinction between those engaged in legitimate demonstrations and those trying to stir up trouble.

He said "restraint and communications" are needed to prevent disorders such as those during the Democratic National Convention.

Democratic presidential candidate Humphrey earlier had defended Daley's police measures in the face of intelligence reports of planned assassinations and a planned attempt by "anarchists" to storm the convention hall.

"I know what caused these demonstrations, and so does everyone else," Humphrey said in a taped radio interview. "They were planned, premeditated. There are certain people in this country who feel that all they have to do is riot and they'll get their way. They don't want to work through the peaceful processes."

Muskie was interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press." Humphrey's remarks were in an interview with Minneapolis radio station WCCO.

Humphrey scored at a homecoming celebration for him in Waverly, Minn., yesterday what he called a tendency of violent people to "take to the streets to settle their problems."

And the candidate expanded on the "New Day" that is becoming his campaign theme.

"The New Day says that there are many people in America who had never really seen the light of day," he said. "They're the people who live in the dark shadows of the ghettoes, live in the slums of rural America, who are the poverty stricken people, poverty not only of the purse but . . . of the spirit—they've lost hope and they need a New Day."

The leader of an anti-Vietnam-policy, fourth party movement said meanwhile he still hopes Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy will agree to be its presidential candidate.

Marcus G. Raskin said the New Party has no national candidate yet but he said its organizations in several states are pressing to put McCarthy's name at the head of their slates whether he wants it there or not.

McCarthy said during his campaign for the Democratic nomination that he would not lead a fourth party movement but might support one if its programs and leaders were acceptable to him.

Raskin predicted the New Party would qualify for the November ballot in 25 states. Spokesmen said earlier it is now on the ballot in Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico and North Dakota.

Raskin was interviwed on CBS' "Face the Nation."

On the Republican side, presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon said in a Labor Day statement the government in recent years has "broken faith with the American working man."

Nixon said inflation, rising prices and the 10 per cent income tax surcharge have robbed workers of all pay raises won since 1965 and added: "These statistics are more than a question of economics; translated into reality, they become a grave question of justice, and a matter of right and wrong."

Third party candidate George C. Wallace saluted working men and women in a statement in which he said "the laboring man's contributions to our free enterprise system and to the preservation of all our freedoms is immeasurable."

"It is to them," he said, "that we look for the continued stability of America's dream of opportunity and liberty for every citizen."

sidered the most suitable site, and if the state refuses to give permission for the tests.

He said the federal government has the right of eminent domain to acquire private lands for public use and this right also preempts rights of other public agencies, such as the state.

"However, we condemn only as a last resort and only if it is needed to accomplish an urgent public purpose," Card said.

He added he hoped the state would, "change its mind and agree to let us drill since it (condemnation) is an expensive and time consuming process."

Another factor may rule out condemnation. It is unclear, from a legal standpoint, whether the federal government in giving Angel Island to the state specifically for use as a state park, has retained any preemptory rights which would allow it to reclaim the island for national defense.

Card said his staff has yet to research the point but that it "certainly will be looked into."

Radio Frequency and interference tests on the sites, made by the Army Air Defense Command at Ent Air Force Base, Colo., have also been completed, Geandrot said.

The Boeing studies evaluated the ability of adjacent communities to provide the physical necessities of the base, such as water, power, schools, roads and stores. They also analyzed the receptability of the communities to the prospect of a missile base being installed nearby.

Once the soils tests are completed and a site is tentatively selected, a real estate planning study will be ordered on that site. It will be the last study before the final site is announced.

The real estate study, according to Card, will delve into costs, multiplicity of ownership of land and the impact the purchase will have on the adjacent communities in terms of tax loss and public reaction.

MARIJUANA

at the scene, particularly since officers must inform all suspects of their right to remain silent, the lieutenant said. "Being in such a place indicates knowledge," he said, sufficient for a legal arrest.

"We're all trained, qualified, experienced officers," he continued. "The only way we can react is that a felony is being committed in our presence. We would be derelict in our duty if we didn't make arrests in these cases," he said, adding that all drugs are confiscated no matter how many cases wind up in court.

"It's due process of law in action," Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos reported. "It's our job to enforce the law. We don't prosecute."

As proof of the effectiveness of this tactic, Schwedhelm cited the price of marijuana in Marin which he said has been driven up from $10 to $15 an ounce.

This practice is disturbing to some court officials, however.

Alvin H. Goldstein Jr., presiding judge of Marin Municipal Court, discussed the over-all problem, about which, he said, judges of his court have been concerned for some time.

Noting a recent increase in the number of "unjustified complaints" to come before his bench, Goldstein said, "The fact that I'm present in a room where marijuana is discovered isn't enough. He said multiple cases have come before him where the illegal drug was discovered in a separate room from those arrested.

Goldstein said that the failure on the part of the district attorney to file in nearly one out of three marijuana arrests this year "is well out of proportion and indicates that some arrests are made without probable cause. This is so even if some are still under investigation by the district attorney," he said, adding that arrests need not always come before investigation.

To prove criminal possession, he said, there must be evidence of "dominion and control" over the substance in question. "The appellate courts have repeatedly held that mere presence is not enough for conviction or arrest," he said.

Noting a relatively small number of cases to be thrown out by his court, (12, according to I-J count) Goldstein said the district attorney's office has been making a "conscientious effort to screen out" bad arrests.

The district attorney has not filed charges in 43 cases out of 159 adult arrests so far this year, 28 for insufficient evidence and three for illegal seizure of evidence, according to Bales. He added that investigation is still continuing in 11 cases and charges will probably be filed later.

"Police sometimes get excited and book for anything under the sun," Bales said. "My job is to sort all that out." He said the job of the police officer is only half done when marijuana is discovered. They must connect it with the owners," he said. "I have to prove who had it."

Bales said he has emphasized this to all police agencies and "they're getting better in their role. Police see how many cases aren't filed and it is making them more aware of the law."

"I don't like the idea of liberally arresting people for serious offenses where evidence is lacking," he said. "But police aren't lawyers and this situation is not unique to Marin or to marijuana."

Goldstein said he doesn't consider ignorance of the law an excuse for bad arrests, particularly in the case of the drug abuse bureau which, he emphasized, is comprised of experienced, professional narcotics officers.

"It is always dangerous to a free society when law enforcement feels it must embark upon a crusade to correct a particular social condition," he said. "Other values hang in the balance including human dignity and civil rights.

"It is no answer to say that the district attorney or the courts can dismiss those cases in which the arrest was unjustified," he said. "If the drug abuse bureau was asked to clean up the county, I suspect this meant within the framework of the American system of justice."

(Tomorrow: Small quantities, many arrests.)

Frederick Washington, 23, of 15 Cole Drive, Marin City, was reported somewhat improved and in fair condition at Marin General Hospital today with gunshot wounds in the left arm, stomach and left lung area.

A hospital spokesman said he was conscious but is still in the intensive car unit.

Washington was shot in Marin City early the morning of Aug. 23 and was in critical condition for several days.

Gabe Jackson, 32, of Marin City has been charged with assaulting Washington with intent to commit murder and is to appear Thursday for preliminary hearing in Marin Municipal Court.

Convention TV To Be Checked

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Commerce Committee plans to look into television coverage of national political conventions and see if guidelines can be set for improvement, says Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash.

Committee members have received complaints networks gave disproportionate attention to such "periphery events" as a delegate's detainment by police at the Democratic National Convention, Magnuson said in an interview.

He said the committee study will not be conducted until next year and representatives of the television industry will be asked to participate.

Transit Analyst Post On Agenda

Appointment of Jerome M. Kuykendall of 497 Irving Court, Tiburon, to the new position of transportation analyst will be considered by the Marin Transit District Board at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Civic Center.

The position is included in the 1968-69 budget with a salary of $9,500 to $11,000. It was authorized when the $406,000 budget was approved July 10.

The transit district board will also explore improved public transportation to the Civic Center, as requested by the board of supervisors.

Cranston Going For Labor Votes In Race For Senate

SYLMAR (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate nominee Alan Cranston opened his campaign against Republican Max Rafferty today by appealing to what he hopes will be a source of major support — organized labor.

The 54-year-old Cranston headed for a Labor Day picnic sponsored by the United Auto Workers, then was to fly to Northern California to begin the statewide flying tour that has become a ritual in California politics.

In what many observers on both sides expect to be one of the roughest senatorial contests anywhere this year, Cranston is relying on the kind of backing from organized labor that includes the two vital ingredients of success — money and votes.

Most labor leaders already have endorsed him. But in his appearance before the auto workers today and at other labor rallies in weeks to come, Cranston must generate enthusiasm among the rank and file if his political comeback hopes are to be realized.

Fresh in his memory and that of the other Democrats is the inroad made by Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan and other GOP candidates in the 1966 election which swept Cranston from his state controller's job and also replaced most other top Democratic officeholders.

Cranston's campaign kickoff trip included a number of out-of-the-ordinary appearances intended to reap as much publicity as possible.

For instance, he will board the ferryboat tomorrow morning which carries commuters from Tiburon to San Francisco. Then he will fly to South Lake Tahoe and tour a sewage plant.

Wednesday will find him visiting the U.S. Olympic team's high-altitude training camp near Echo Summit. His publicity staff said Cranston, a former 440-yard runner at Stanford University, "may joint U.S. Olympic athletes for a sprint . . ."

Expansion Of Park To Be Discussed

A proposal by the Sausalito Recreation Commission for the expansion of Bayside Park will be discussed by the Sausalito School District board tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the district office.

Also at the session, Dr. Staten Webster will report on last year's guidance and special instruction programs.

Mutual Aid System Stops Fire In Hurry

A wind-whipped brush and tree fire, believed set by incendiarists, burned 50 acres west of Fairfax Friday evening threatening to sweep toward homes in Oak Manor and Sleepy Hollow.

Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said the fire was brought under control in the first application of a mutual aid system which rapidly brought 55 firemen and 16 units of equipment to the scene.

The fire followed two others earlier in the day, both believed deliberately set, one at 2:57 p.m., which burned about 10 acres above the Buckeye Restaurant on Shoreline Highway near the Highway 101 exit; the other a one-acre fire at 4:11 p.m. above Tennessee Valley Road.

The chief said the west-of-Fairfax fire under investigation may have been set, although an incendiary device has not been located.

A witness saw a vehicle with four occupants in the area where the fire started east of White's Hill at 7:26 p.m., he said.

The fire reportedly started with a big flash, which would indicate that it was set, the chief said.

The blaze started in a canyon, moved east of the new White Hill School, and was pushed by winds of 30 to 35 miles an hour toward Upper Oak Manor and Sleepy Hollow.

The fire reached to the top of the hill above Oak Manor Drive and came within one-half mile of homes in Upper Oak Manor, the chief said.

It was moving rapidly so he put into effect the new mutual aid system designed to bring in the greatest amount of manpower in the shortest time, the chief reported.

Units from Fairfax, San Anselmo, Kentfield, Larkspur, Tiburon and San Rafael fire departments were called, as well as a California Disaster Office unit and a Marin Municipal Water District unit.

The fire was under control at 8:11 p.m., but mopping up and patrolling continued all night, the chief said.

Chief Bloom explained that under the new system only a few men are taken from various departments so that no one department is too heavily depleted of manpower.

The system also assures that professional firemen, rather than volunteers will be on the scene, he said. "In the past, there was a problem of getting manpower in a short time," he noted.

While crews were out on the White's Hill fire another spot fire flared up on Mount Tamalpais, about 400 feet northwest of the county's lookout tower, the chief reported.

The fire, reported at 9:20 p.m., was controlled at first by Gordon Hassler, the lookout, using a back pump, the chief reported.

It burned an area 30 by 30 feet, but could have been serious, the chief said. He said an incendiary device was found and the fire was set, possibly by three persons, who had stopped to beg for food at the lookout tower about 10 minutes before the blaze.

School Aid Session Due Novato Help

Novato Unified School District trustees are expected to join tomorrow in a request for a special session of the Legislature to act on school financing.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the administration building on the Novato High School campus.

The district's budget had to be reduced by $128,350 for the new year because of decrease in state allowances, according to Supt. James G. Bunker.

The superintendent also will ask the board to have the Novato district join with other California districts in suits against book publishers for recovery of overcharges. Eleven publishers have been indicted for overcharging school districts.

A proposal for sale by the district of over three acres of the Marion School site on Grant Avenue will be presented, as will an agreement with California Dental Services for dental insurance for district employees.

Transplant Patients Satisfactory

COMBINED AP & UPI

HOUSTON, Tex. — The four recipients of transplanted organs of a 20-year-old shooting victim were listed in satisfactory condition today.

A spokesman at Methodist Hospital said the heart recipient, William C. Carroll, 50, of Scottsdale, Ariz., and the lung recipient, William J. Whaley, 39, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., sat up in bed and took nourishment yesterday.

Thomas A. Stevenson, 22, of Houston, and William C. Kaiser, 41, of Odessa, Tex., the two kidney recipients, were making excellent progress, the spokesman said.

All have been visited by their families.

The organs were transferred Saturday by five teams totaling more than 60 physicians, nurses and aides.

Dr. Michael E. DeBakey, who led the mass operation, said it was the first time that four organs from one donor had been transplanted.

The donor was Nelva Lou Hernandez, wife of a Houston warehouse foreman. Her corneas also were removed and placed in an eye bank.

The heart transplant was the 36th in the world and the 11th in Houston.

There was another heart transplant in Pittsburgh, the world's 37th.

In California, two heart transplant patients are "recovering satisfactorily" today at Stanford University Medical Center, according to a spokesman.

Physicians said Robert O. McKee, a 37-year-old electronics engineer from Palo Alto, visited with his wife yesterday. He received the heart of a 39-year-old psychiatric social worker Saturday in an operation conducted by Dr. Norman E. Shumway.

The donor, Dr. William Sample, 30, Menlo Park, died from a massive brain hemorrhage.

Meanwhile, Leonard Drake, recipient of a heart transplant performed by the Shumway team 10 days ago, was reported in good condition.

The condition of a Pittsburgh area man continues to improve, doctors say, after he received the heart of a 22-year-old auto crash victim.

"He is awake, alert, and recognized and waved to his family," a spokesman for the Presbyterian University Hospital said last night of the world's 37th heart transplant patient.

The spokesman said, "Progress has been good. Artificial respiration has been removed and he is breathing on his own."

Hospital officials have declined to identify the recipient, but the Pittsburgh Post Gazette said in an article for its editions today that the recipient is Ben Anolik, 46, a Pittsburgh businessman and former boxing promoter.

Paratrooper Shoots Self After Kidnaping, Chase

FRESNO (AP) — A young Army paratrooper lay wounded today by his own hand after kidnaping a police officer briefly and dashing into the hills in a wild, three-day chase.

Tired and hungry after going without food, Darrell David Chavarria surrendered to an irrigation work crew while almost 40 officers searched for him by aircraft and on foot.

As the temperature reached 120 in the San Joaquin Valley, Chavarria handed over three guns but kept a fourth hidden in his trousers.

The 18-year-old Klamath Falls, Ore., youth pulled out the weapon at the Fresno County Courthouse after the 28-mile ride from Tranquillity and shot himself in the stomach.

Central Hospital listed him in fair condition after two and one-half hours of surgery.

"Darrell always said he would rather be dead than behind bars," said Barbara Cramer of her son after driving to his side. She said he told her he hated the Army.

Military authorities said Chavarria had been absent without leave from Fort Bragg, N.C., since Aug. 12. They gave no reason for his action.

Chavarria escaped Thursday night after being arrested near Greenfield in Monterey County on a stolen car warrant.

Drawing a pistol, he forced two military policemen to stand by as he abducted Patrolman John McCarter, and drove off with him in his patrol car. Chavarria used the car radio to warn other officers away, saying McCarter would be shot.

He used a bull horn to threaten his way through a road block at one point and sped on past.

The car finally ran out of gas and Chavarria commandeered a pickup truck and made McCarter drive it. He fled into the hills after the policeman drove into a ditch and tramped through the hills from Thursday until Sunday before he gave himself up at a ranch near Tranquillity.

Wallet Taken At Gunpoint

A San Rafael man was robbed of his wallet containing $60 by four youths, one armed with a small pistol, Friday night in Marin City, sheriff's deputies reported.

Deputies said Carl Osterlye of 16 Jewell Street reported the youths flagged him down as he drove through the intersection of Cole Drive and Drake Avenue at 3:10 p.m., then approchaed him, produced a pistol and demanded his wallet.

After he handed it over, he told deputies, the youths ran west toward a parking lot in the 300 block of Drake and disappeared.

Antismog Pamphlets Available

"But What Can I Do About It?" a pamphlet outlining a personal antismog program, is now available free to the public, according to Edward W. Bullard Jr., president of the Marin Tuberculosis and Health Association.

"Marin is suffering an ever-increasing hazard from air pollution," he said, noting recent air tracer tests by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District proved that pollutants from any of the six counties in the district can be carried by wind to any other counties.

"Marin is especially susceptible to the industrial fall-out of the East Bay," he said.

Bullard said the pamphlet lists household habits that add to air pollution, such as shaking a mop, and urges periodic checks of anti-smog devices on cars.

Especially stressed is the need to eliminate backyard burning, he reported. He said the practice adds nearly two million pounds of air pollutants each day in the Bay Area.

The pamphlet is available at the association office, 206 Bon Air Center, Greenbrae.

Schools' Overbudgeting A Glimpse Of Future

Sometimes an occurrence offers a glimpse of the future, if one looks closely.

Such may be the case with the annual submission of school district budgets to the Marin County auditor-controller's office.

Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell reported that 14 school districts out of 23 — nearly two-thirds — submitted budgets which called for revenues exceeding the amount they could legally raise on their tax rates.

NOW, DRAWING UP a school district budget is no simple matter. And it was not made easier this year by the Legislature's adjourning without acting on any tax or school finance measure.

However, the 14 budgets were all prepared by school employees aware of the law as it stood, of the assessed valuation, and of the limits on the districts' general purpose taxes (various over-ride taxes are not controlled by law), and of the fact that tax revenues applied to the budget must allow for 10 per cent delinquency. Yet they would have required taxes beyond the legal limits.

Some of the school district superintendents, reacting in outrage after Mitchell pointed out that they had overbudgeted, claimed the districts set up higher budgets "on purpose to get the maximum tax rate allowable." This is an interesting expression of what might fairly be called fiscal irresponsibility. It is also pretty plain indication of what would happen if there were no maximum tax rate ceilings.

HERE IS WHERE the glimpse of the future comes in: On June 30, 1971, under terms of the Unruh Education Act passed last year, all limits on general purpose tax rates of California school districts will expire.

This will mean that, thereafter, county boards of supervisors must approve any budget submitted by a school district, and set whatever tax rate is necessary to finance it.

This will give school districts spending freedom to match that of counties — much greater than that allowed cities and special districts, tax rates of which are limited by law.

THE AMOUNTS by which 14 of Marin's school districts overbudgeted this year, in terms of the additional tax rate that would have been required in each, were reported by Mitchell as follows:

Marin Junior College District, 2.5 cents; San Rafael Elementary School District, 3.5 cents; Reed School District, 7 cents; Fairfax School District, 8 cents; Tamalpais High and Mill Valley School Districts, each 9 cents; Nicasio School District, 9.5 cents; Novato Unified School District, 11 cents; San Rafael High School District, 11.5 cents; Bolinas-Stinson School District, 13 cents; Tomales High School District, 17 cents; San Anselmo School District, 18.5 cents, and Larkspur School District, 34 cents.

How much higher might these budgets have been were there no tax rate limits within which the budgeting officials were trying to stay?

TWO BILLS TO REPEAL the section of the Unruh Education Act which removes the limits as of 1971 got lost somewhere in this year's confused legislative session. They were opposed, understandably, by the California School Boards Association and the California Teachers Association.

Other repeal bills will follow, no doubt, next year. But they will suffer similar fate if the legislators hear only from those who have a vested interest in higher school taxes.

'Big Wayward Girl' Tells Story Of California's Governments

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Perhaps the title "Big Wayward Girl" is a little unusual for an informal political history of California, but Herbert L. Phillips, author of the work, is an unusual fellow.

In his new book, published by Doubleday & Co., scheduled for public distribution Sept. 6, Phillips unfolds the unbelievable series of events marking the government of a people who in the beginning numbered only a handful and now have grown to 20 million.

PROBABLY no writer in the political field is as qualified as Phillips to deal with the subject matter in this new book.

Prior to his political editorship of the Sacramento Bee, Phillips was on the Sacramento Union and the San Francisco Examiner. As a reporter with some 40 years of experience in the California political scene, the intimate of governors and high state officials, he was in a position to see all, know all and tell all, which he did with astounding insight and ability.

Thus "Big Wayward Girl" is the culmination not only of hard work and much research, but also of on-the-scene contact with his subject.

IN HIS FOREWARD, the author points out "California is a big girl now, with magnificent measurements and all the self-assurance of a repeated beauty contest winner, but she still has a persistent, nationwide reputation for waywardness.

"The complaint of professional politicians around the country is that the stunning object of their growing attention is altogether too fickle.

"By fits and turns over the years, California has exhibited all the eccentricities, ambition, charm and unpredictability of an old-time Hollywood movie queen."

PHILLIPS STARTS off with California's first governor, Gaspar de Portola; takes the reader through the fascinating era of the Spanish regime, the Bear Flag Republic, the Pacific Republic plot, a little known facet of California history, and the American occupation.

The railroad empire and the role of the Central and Southern Pacific in California politics and the crusade of the late Hiram Johnson are portrayed, along with their influence on the lives of the people at that time.

QUITE NATURALLY, the book emphasizes the later era of politics, from the days of Gov. William D. Stephens down to the present Ronald Reagan, as this is the area with which the author is most familiar.

The idiosyncracies indulged in by the populace, including "30 Dollars Every Thursday," the Upton Sinclair attempt to gain a foothold for socialism, and the constitutional amendment instituting a new welfare administration along with its quick demise, all are part of the book.

The lobbying profession in California and its influence on legislation is not neglected either, the gyrations of former king-pin Artie Samish being one of the highlights along with the shaking up the Philbrick report gave the state Legislature.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Thanks To Tiburon Firefighters

We would like to use this medium to thank the Tiburon Fire Department and its volunteers for its outstanding efforts in saving our home yesterday (Aug. 26).

A fire threatened of such proportions that at the moment we realized what was happening there was little we could do but walk away from our home and leave it to the part of the fire. With the utmost of clear thinking, directions were given and followed that were incredible in performance. All I could do was pay for God's help — it seemed so overwhelmingly impossible to meet the challenge humanly. Certainly His goodness was expressed in the diligence of these men and their superb response to fine training and performance.

We are most grateful to them, always.

Violence Deplored But Nothing Done

The pictures of youngsters being clubbed and hauled off to paddy wagons during the Democratic convention were horrendous.

The commentator said Mr. Humphrey looked out his hotel window and deplored the sight.

Although a candidate, he was still vice president of the United States. Why didn't he do something about it? If he can't stop a small war on Michigan Avenue, what can he do in Vietnam?

Economy Answer To Living Well

I am quite upset after having read about those people on welfare and how poorly they live in this rich county of ours. I am an average housewife with two small children whose husband earns less than the $10,000 average. We own our home in Marinwood and drive a late model car which is paid for. The secret is knowing how to budget which one women admitted she knew nothing about.

Giving money to people without helping them spend it wisely is like giving money to a child who has no idea what it can buy.

I see nothing wrong with giving a child powdered milk; our son was raised that way because that was all we could afford and today we mix it with half whole milk. We use margarine to make up for the butterfat which is missing. We don't eat fresh fruit when it is out of season because we can't afford it, but feeding a child soda crackers between meals is a waste of money and harmful to the teeth. Now that fresh fruit is at its cheapest we use a lot of it. Chicken is not economical as most people think. Eggs are an excellent source of protein, as is ground beef. . . .

I would like to be given the opportunity to spend some time with one mother with a family the size of ours and help her to help herself by teaching her to live within her means and feeding her family properly. Why should this happen in such a rich county like ours?

U.N. Keeps Silent As Biafrans Starve

The latest from the U.N. was much weeping and wailing over the execution of one murder, who was duly convicted by an integrated Rhodesian jury.

Where's the U.N. now, while a million Biafrans starve to death monthly? No a peep out of the great humanitarian, peace organization!

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

It's Nice (?) To Hear From Your Congressman

(Reprinted from Wall Street Journal)

A reader sends us a form letter he received from his congressman containing an invitation to order not more than five (because of limited supply) "valuable information pamphlets" from among more than 100 listed on the back of the legislator's letter. Our reader is mildly indignant.

"With all the controversy about the Post Office Department being unable to handle the present volume of mail," he wonders why it is necessary for his congressman to flood the mail with this form letter.

The valuable information pamphlets, incidentally, are government publications made available to members of Congress for free distribution to citizens in their districts. They include such titles as "Raising Rabbits," "How To Buy Cheddar Cheese," "The Old House Borer," "Eat a Good Breakfast To Start a Good Day," and "Silverfish and Firebrats . . . How To Control Them." A firebrat, in case you don't know either, is an insect that lives around fireplaces and ovens.

There is, to be sure, more to this form letter than the invitation to write in for these valuable pamphlets. It also includes the congressman's thanks to the people in his district for their "wholehearted support," and the request "to contact me at any time I can be of personal service to you or your family."

Now although the congressman's letter and offer may represent a dubious expense and an added burden on the mails, we find it a little hard to share wholly our reader's indignation. You can hardly blame a legislator, especially if he is running for reelection — as this particular one happens to be — for wanting to keep in touch with the people in his district. Especially when surveys have ascertained that an amazingly large number of people do not know who their congressman is.

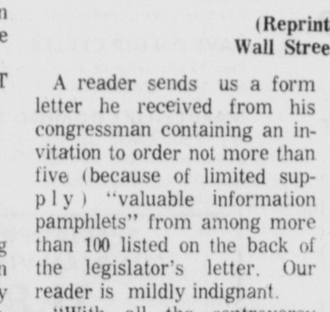
Moreover, about the only time some people hear from their congressman is when he has something to give away, such as pamphlets on "The Old House Borer." Finally, that form letter may be this congressman's quaint way of trying to get even with his constituents for some of the boring letters they send to him.

If our reader still is indignant about the matter, perhaps he ought to write a letter to his congressman.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A fashionable French lady dropped into a Boardwalk cafe in Atlantic City and ordered a cognac. A full half hour later the flustered waitress came back to report, "I'm terribly sorry, but the bartender just admitted he doesn't know how to make a cognac."



Pearl Bailey was chatting with friends just after her appearance on an Ed Sullivan TV show. Miss Bailey, naturally, had sung hit songs from "Hello, Dolly," following which Robert Merrill warbled an aria from "Traviata." "Poor Bob," commiserated Pearl Bailey, "is still using those same old arrangements."

Democrats Must Rise From Pit Of Chicago Convention Shambles

CHICAGO — The Democrats have no place to go but up. After this hapless shambles of a convention, the climb out of the pit looks impossibly steep.

The forces of anarchy in the streets were matched by the anarchic conduct often prevailing in the convention hall. Having clothed Sen. Eugene McCarthy with the multicolored array of their discontents, his most impassioned followers seemed bent on rule or ruin. He could only have been acutely embarrassed as his far-out Yippie-hippie following massed across from the Conrad Hilton Hotel, flanked by police and National Guardsmen, chanting obscenities throughout the night through amplifying devices.

At this late moment the MacCarthy image has been worn down to a shadow of its once-bright promise. In the critical stages, he had faltered until many who had given him their all were forced to admit that perhaps he really did not want to be President. Another device was necessary if the "stop Humphrey" drive was to have any chance of success.

THE EXPEDIENT that the left-of-center Democrats resorted to was a measure of the party's desperation. It was to whip up a move to draft Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts. Conceived in futility and born of despair, the light from this little boomlet flickered briefly and then, like a candle in a hurricane, was snuffed out.

Among the more anarchic rule-or-ruin elements within the big California delegation the Kennedy boomlet had its principal support. They were looking for a savior, and the magic of the Kennedy name was assumed to be enough to turn the convention around and send it in a delirium of joy down the Kennedy course. One of the principal fomentors was Jesse Unruh, the homespun Machiavelli who sees his own power base as speaker of the California Assembly threatened by a strong rightward swing in his politically eccentric state.

At the family retreat at Hyannis Port, Mass., Kennedy tried for a time to keep silent. He had twice said he had no intention of running for any public office this year.

His position was complicated by the presence in Chicago of his brother-in-law, Stephen Smith. Smith's political wheeling and dealing was reported in various exaggerated forms as efforts persisted to keep the boomlet going.

Even in the midst of the sound and fury of the convention, such a desperate expedient seemed to many devoted to the memory of the two murdered Kennedys to be a profound disservice to the surviving brother, to his family, and to the tradition of public service for which they stood.

At the very time they were coaxing the Kennedy boomlet along, the more cynical of the maneuverers were conceding in private that he would have only an outside chance to defeat Richard Nixon in November. But he would help greatly in California and New York, where the magic of the Kennedy name is brightest. The ancient principle of "save yourself if you can" was at work.

FOR THIS frantic scramble the news media must take a considerable share of responsibility, and particularly certain television reporters. They did a lot to manufacture the Kennedy boomlet, carrying rumor and hopefully exaggerated reports to startled delegates on the convention floor. Eric Sevareid of CBS went so far as to say that the boomlet was a creation of the news media.

The motive may have been merely to relieve the tedium of the kind of inevitablility that characterized the convention in Miami Beach as Republican delegates prepared to ratify the Nixon nomination. But it was sparked as well by the almost worshipful affection that many newsmen hold for the Kennedys. Again, to more objective observers it seemed a disservice to the last remaining object of this idolatry.

How the party's candidate will live with the confused and warring factions coming out of Chicago, it is too early to say. The pieces of the puzzle are scattered on the floor.

Rusk, Others Expected To Quit Johnson Cabinet

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Cabinet changes are in prospect in the dying days of the Johnson Administration.

Several resignations are likely. Secretary of State Dean Rusk's may be the most important.

Named to his cabinet post in 1960 by the late John F. Kennedy, Rusk is physically exhausted by his grueling years of service.

LIKE OTHER top members of President Johnson's official family, Rusk has been under heavy pressures to stay the course and remain on the job until a new administration takes over. Johnson has been very persuasive with personal pleas of that sort.

However, the Democratic National Convention, by approving the administration-drafted Vietnam policy statement and by nominating Vice President Humphrey, has relieved Rusk of some of those pressures. With administration policy thus vindicated — and extended — Rusk is in a better position to step down.

Actually Rusk's tenure, the very presence of a Vietnam hard-liner in the nation's top foreign policy post, has been singled out by some critics as an important barrier to a Vietnam truce. To that extent, Rusk's departure would help to free the President for one final try at ending the war.

If Rusk does step down, the President could call on George Ball, a former undersecretary of state, who is now the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. Insiders believe, however, that Cyrus Vance, former deputy secretary of defense, would be the President's choice as Rusk's successor. Vance is now the number two man for the U.S. negotiating team at the Vietnam talks in Paris.

Vance is an old Johnson man. He was first hired by the President when Johnson was chairman of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, and Johnson was instrumental later in securing Vance's Pentagon appointment by Kennedy.

SECRETARY of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler is another cabinet member who is reported ready to bow out. He recently underwent a gall bladder operation, and his wife has reportedly stepped up her pleas that he step down.

Undersecretary Joseph Barr is expected to take over if and when Fowler does retire.

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman has often expressed a desire to leave that post.

TV VIOLENCE — The Senate communications subcommittee will put its publicity spotlight on the increasingly troublesome question of televised crime and violence during the renewed congressional session which starts Wednesday. Public hearings will probably be held.

Chairman John O. Pastore, D-R.I. has advised the television networks that they will be asked to tell the subcommittee what voluntary actions they are taking to reduce the amount of violence which is beamed into American homes.

"We want to put the spotlight of public opinion on this matter. We are going to call in the networks to see what they have to say about the furor over televised violence," says Pastore.

How Elysian 'Twould Be To Live On Heavenly, Just Off Paradise

If your home fronts on Paradise Drive and your letters to friends for years have advertised your address as Paradise Drive, it could be a traumatic experience to be suddenly downgraded to a lesser known address such as Tredago Road or Teaberry Lane.

To residents who have been sentimentally attached to a name like Paradise, the change would be like being kicked out of an exclusive club and banished to nether regions.

NOW WHY would anyone want you to give up your Paradise mailing address? The fire chief in Tiburon has a pretty good answer. When firemen get calls to a Paradise address, confusion results because the fire truck can't reach your home via Paradise. Your driveway is via Tredago Road. If everybody used one street for a mailing address and another for actual driveway access, firemen and police would have quite a time reaching the right home in an emergency.

Why not a compromise? Tredago is rather nondescript, and you can't blame residents for wanting a change. Teaberry is slightly more colorful, but still falls far short of Paradise. So why not rename Tredago with something like Heavenly Lane?

Then in your next letter to friends, you can proudly announce that you now live "at 8 Heavenly Lane, just off Paradise." Wouldn't be nearly so degrading as having to admit that you've been demoted from Paradise to Tredago or Teaberry or Post Office Box 8.

ECONOMIC RETALIATION against San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto's commuter tax might turn out to be more effective than the mayor expected when he kept brushing aside the treat as minor or non-existent.

The "Buy in Marin" lapel button campaign and the "brown bag" campaign by commuters to take their lunch bags on Friday instead of patronizing San Francisco restaurants and taverns are mere rallying points. Toting lunch bags on Fridays may be more of a demonstration than actual economic sanction. Many will soon tire of their sandwiches and begin sneaking back into the taverns for a hot meal or a little noon-hour business conference, accompanied by a nip or two.

But behind these little acts of defiance are the less publicized and more effective sanctions that can really hurt San Francisco — irate housewives marching in or calling San Francisco stores and cancelling their charge accounts, or families transferring all their insurance policies — life, fire, car — to Marin firms.

If enough commuters and their fellow residents begin cancelling San Francisco accounts and patronage and have enough determination to stick by them for several months, and if commuters in San Mateo and Alameda and other commuter counties do likewise, the impact on San Francisco business should be considerable.

MARIN COUNTY'S new airport north of Novato, just named Gnoss Field, will probably dispense with a grand dedication ceremony for another year.

Tris Coffin, chairman of the county aviation commission, figures it this way: Maybe a small dedication this fall when one of the major buildings is completed, but a year from now, when the runway extension and lights are completed, we can have a grand dedication with an air acrobatic team to attract thousands to the ceremony.

New And Militant Organization: Veterans Of Democratic Wars

CHICAGO — A group of battle-hardened veterans who fought at the national convention in Chicago have decided to band together to form a new organization called the Veterans of Democratic Wars.

The commander of the VDW said: "We want to perpetuate the spirit of the fighting men and women who came to Chicago and will soon be returning to civilian life. These men and women deserve their nation's gratitude and we are going to see that what they did in Chicago will not be forgotten after all the welcome-home parades have been held, and all the confetti has been thrown."

"WHAT WILL YOU demand?" I asked.

"We want anyone who was accredited to the Democratic nation convention, either as a delegate or a newspaperman, to be given the same privileges as veterans of other American wars. This would include the GI Bill of Rights, veterans' housing, and free hospital and medical care.

"Aslo we are demanding that bonuses be given to those who fought so valiantly to get into the Conrad Hilton Hotel and the stockyards during the last four days."

"I can't see how the country could refuse you," I said.

"The VDW," the commander said, "will demand that any Democrat who had to leave his job to come to Chicago be rehired at no loss of pay or seniority."

"There's nothing unreasonable about that."

"And we will dedicate ourselves to seeing that this will be the convention to end all conventions, and we pray, because of what we did here this week, our children will never have to go to another Democratic political convention again."

I WIPED AWAY a tear.

"We also plan to honor the many heros who sacrificed so much so that we might nominate a Democratic candidate for President of the United States."

"Who are they?" I asked.

"There is Sam Morgenthaler, a delegate from California, who singlehandedly, and without thinking of his own safety, tried to park his car at the stockyards in a space reserved for Mayor Richard J. Daley's water commissioner."

"That really must have taken guts," I said.

"His widow said Sam was that kind of guy. And we're also honoring Eldridge Carbuncle, a delegate from Rhode Island, who, knowing that the odds were 100 to 1, still tried to get his wife into the oonvention hall without a ticket."

WHAT DID he do?"

"He threw his body across the barbed wire fence and she walked over him. Unfortunately Carbuncle was caught in a beam of light from one of the towers, and he never had a chance."

The commander of the VDW: "Our highest award will go to Roger Klunstadt, a young page to the Alaskan delegation, who volunteered to get through the lines and bring back coffee for the delegation. He was caught and tortured by security forces, but he still refused to tell them how many coffees he had been ordered to bring back with sugar and how many with cream."

Supervision At Fairfax Park To Be Discussed

Daytime supervision at Andy Peri Park in Fairfax will be considered by the Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission meeting tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the Fairfax City Hall.

Supervision has been requested in the form of petitions presented to the commission since last month's meeting.

Also on the agenda will be the senior citizens director's report, a report on the condition of parks and the recreation director's report.

The commission will consider the use of the Fairfax Women's Club Building as a polling place Nov. 5 and will discuss repairs to the park pavillion. Commissioner Leonard Wilgenbush will report on the condition of restrooms at the ballpark.

Motorcycle Chase Ends In Arrest

A San Francisco motorcyclist reportedly led law enforcement officers on a wild chase yesterday afternoon from the Marin-Sonoma line to Novato on Highway 101.

Thomas J. Quinliven II, 24, of 1606 12th Avenue, was arrested one half mile south of Diablo Avenue after a chase that began about 4 p.m., the California Highway Patrol reported.

Quinven was southbound on Highway 101 at about 75-80 miles an hour when a highway patrol car gave chase, officers reported.

Using the roadway shoulder at times to avoid slower traffic Quinliven drove to a service station when he reached Vallejo Street, Novato, but pulled out again when the patrol car neared.

Then, officers said, he made a U-turn at Grant Avenue, heading north, and at Sweetser Avenue headed south again on Highway 101.

A second patrol car and a Novato police patrol car joined the chase, as Quinliven reportedly weaved in and out of traffic before he was halted.

He was charged with rackless driving, failure to yield to red light and siren, resisting arrest and driving without a valid license in his possession.

He was booked at the Marin County Jail under $781 bail and held under a hold order from San Francisco police.

Massachusetts was the sixth of the original 13 states to ratify the Constitution.

Quiet After Sniping, Violence

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Police described as "extremely quiet" yesterday the predominantly Negro area of this city torn by violence the previous two nights.

Authorities said they were generally staying out of the area—scene of disorder, sniping and looting which began late Friday after a teen-age dance.

The two nights' violence resulted in injuries to 22 policemen and 30 other persons and the arrest of 15 persons. Property damage was generally light, confined mostly to broken windows except for three fires Friday night which were quickly put out.

All of the injured policemen—which included four who were shot—were listed in satisfactory condition at local hospitals or had been treated and released.

The violence began when two off-duty policemen tried to disarm a youth they said was "waving a gun around" in a men's washroom at the city auditorium—scene of the dance.

Officers said they were attacked by other youths and after they held them off at gunpoint acrowd formed and began throwing rocks, bottles and chairs at the officers and other policemen called as reinforcements.

Cash Stolen

Jack Campbell of 1199 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, reported to sheriff's deputies Thursday night that someone entered his home and took about $400 in cash from a bank in a bedroom.

Calm Follows Rioting, Fire Bombing, Looting

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP) — Nearly 200 state and local police enforced calm today in a 14-square-block area of this shipbuilding city where street violence early yesterday caused one death and heavy property destruction.

The officers cordoned off a section of town in which Negro-owned business firms predominate. Repeatedly throughout last night, police cruisers sped to areas where threats of new outbursts were reported.

Police in nearby Hampton were put on double shifts after reports of possible trouble and officers cruised continually through Negro neighborhoods.

The four-hour explosion of firebomb-throwing, window-smashing and looting that began just after Saturday midnight left one man fatally shot, a policeman beaten and three large stores destroyed by fire.

Roving bands of Negroes, young and old, broke scores of windows in business establishments and threw gasoline bombs from the sidewalks and cars.

The trouble erupted when a white policeman, Patrolman Garland J. Boswell, 29, was summoned by the management of a Negro-owned theater to arrest a 17-year-old Negro girl reported to be drunk and disorderly.

Police said Boswell made the arrest but when he emerged from the theater with the girl in custody, he was set upon by a group of 10 or 12 Negro youths.

During the melee, posile said, a Negro man—Floyd David Price, 55—took Boswell's pistol and fired wildly at Patrolman James F. Sims, one of two police officers sent to Boswell's assistance.

Sims returned the fire and Price was fatally wounded, police said. Boswell was treated at a hospital and later released.

Told by Mayor Donald Hyatt that Newport News faced a "clear and present danger" of "civil commotion . . . in the nature of a riot," the city council yesterday afternoon gave Police Chief W. F. Peace power to restrict or prohibit the movement of persons and vehicles around the city.

Peace was given authority to impose a curfew but said after a meeting with City Manager W. E. Lawson that none would be imposed "unless it becomes absolutely necessary."

Police estimated that 150 persons, nearly all Negroes, took part in yesterday's violence, which was quelled after 80 state troopers were summoned to reinforce city police.

One police officer was slightly injured when a gunshot shattered the windshield of his cruiser. Buildings burned out when set on fire by gasoline bombs included a shoe store, a furniture store and department store. The Newport News anti-poverty office was sacked. Some stores were looted.

Seven persons were taken into custody but only one was held by police more than a few hours. He was charged with looting.

Officer Promoted

Patrolman Ronald Shanaker of the Novato Police Department has been promoted to sergeant, effective yesterday.

Shorter Work Week Means More Vodka Drinking For The Russians

MOSCOW (AP) — Vodka, the joy and curse of Russia for centuries, is getting a boost this year as Russian workers face a new challenge—how to use their new long weekends.

The five-day work week, introduced last winter in most Soviet factories, appears to be driving the workers to drink.

Other unforeseen problems also have arisen, but drunkenness draws the harshest scoldings in the official press.

The humor magazine Krokodil summed it up in a cover cartoon recently: "Now I have two days off," the reeling husband tells his wife as he comes home brandishing two empties.

EMPTIED BOTTLES

To the Russian reader, it was instantly clear that he had emptied two quarts of vodka by the end of his two days off, probably because he could find nothing better to do.

The cartoon was painfully close to reality.

Vodka sales jumped more than 24 per cent when workers were given two consecutive days off. Industrial production, which was expected to benefit from the new schedule, dropped in many plants because people often were in no shape to work Monday morning.

MAKING UP

The Russian laborer seemed to be making up for years of long hours and hard work.

The wartime 66-hour week was cut to 48 hours in the mid-1940s, then to 41 hours in 1960 under Nikita S. Khrushchev. But the 41-hour week was spread over six days, giving most people only Sundays free.

After years of promises, the last of 77 million factory and office workers finally got the extended weekend at the beginning of 1968. Their working hours were redistributed so that they still work 41 hours a week.

TWO DAYS

This is not the 36-hour week Khrushchev promised them, but the novelty of two days off seems to please the average man in many respects.

Trips to the countryside are now possible on any summer weekend. The typical Russian might indulge his passion for hunting mushrooms, camping out, or just hiking in the woods. Except for the mobs of people, there is now nothing to prevent families from traveling to nearby lakes on Saturday, returning home Sunday evening.

RESENTMENT SHOWS

Signs of resentment still show up in the press, however, usually because of problems not solved before the new system began.

"I had to take the subway, two buses and a trolley car to get to the nearest barber shop," one young engineer said shortly after most of Moscow started closing down on Saturdays.

The problem has been ironed out so that at least three barber shops operate Saturdays in each of Moscow's 18 districts.

Doctors' and dentists' offices are another problem—as yet unresolved.

SHUT DOWN

In the beginning all free medical services were shut down on Saturday. The storm of protest forced one outpatient clinic in each district to stay open, but this has proven inadequate.

"Somehow, I seem to get a toothache only on Saturdays," said a middle-aged lady. "And so does everybody else."

Factory workers are inconvenienced because they cannot leave their jobs for medical consultation unless they have a very high fever or some other obvious sign of illness.

HELP PEOPLE

Political propaganda specialists are trying to help people profit from their new leisure time.

The Komsomol, the Communist party organization responsible for young people, has welcomed the two-day weekend as a method of giving the masses "more time to develop their world outlook."

Pravda, the newspaper that speaks for the Communist party, also takes an optimistic view. It quoted Karl Marx on leisure: "The day will come when spare time, not working time, will be the yardstick of wealth."

NO IMPROVEMENT

A recent poll showed that most working women have noticed no improvement in their lives since the new schedule was introduced. Their housework has merely expanded to fill the time, they said. Others told pollsters that the extra free time is leading to hooliganism and drunkenness.

Junipers, though hardly more than shrubs, are the most widely distributed trees in the Northern Hemisphere.

King-Sized Galley Keeps Crew Happy

ABOARD USS BON HOMME RICHARD (UPI)—Being a sailor in the U.S. Navy may have its hardships, but nobody can complain about the food.

The men aboard the aircraft carriers flinging jet bombers into North Vietnam eat like kings—from king sized kitchens.

The galley of an aircraft carrier boasts cooking pots which look like giant cauldrons and spoons the size of spades.

The recipe book is a stout wooden box with foot square file cards bearing 100-portion menus. The instructions call for a hearty "two tablespoons of nutmeg" instead of the skimpy eighth of a teaspoonful used by the housewife.

But when you throw 3,500 pounds of ground meat into the meat loaf, things tend to get on the large side.

Chief Commissaryman Oscar V. Bruins, of San Diego, serves 15,000 meals a day. He oversees all the ordering, cooking and bread baking for the USS Bon Homme Richard's galley.

"We have two 80-gallon pots boiling full of spaghetti for one main course," the Navy mess steward said. "But the favorite is beans—baked beans, with pork, with wieners, black-eyed or pinto, it doesn't matter. They'll eat them at any time, all of 80 gallons for breakfast."

He walked around his 15 meat roasters and sighed.

"Our best selling menu is steak, of course, but after that it's hamburger. It just has to look like a hamburger. For instance today's veal meat loaf didn't go, but when I made last week's veal and sausage meat into hamburger patty shapes, we didn't have a leftover."

Bruins led the way to the bakery, passed a few solitary eaters at their four o'clock lunches, and stepped aside for a trolley loaded with air-to-surface missiles.

"That's one of our problems," he apologized. "The mess happens to be part of the missile route to the flight deck."

The thought of pushing past missiles to get at one's bacon and eggs in the morning seemed an interesting change from the more usual breakfast routines.

Tiny, the baker, was preparing the next batch of bread. He and his 10 assistants turn out 900 loaves, 300 pies and 50 cakes a day. Tiny did not want to be identified by name or hometown.

Pie comes up at least four times a week—a strong contender for favorite on the dessert side.

Tiny's cakes just don't come out well, he said. The Navy had a surplus of canned cake mix. "I ordered big stock, now I can't use them," Bruins said.

His voice quickened a little as he got into his subject.

"It's that list to the port side," he explained. "All those aircraft being on the portside flight deck does that, and the cake batter runs to one edge of the baking tins. So the cakes are burned on one half and soggy the other."

High above on the flight deck, the sharp-nosed A-4s were carrying their 750-pound bomb loads towards the catapults that would launch them on missions over North Vietnam and F-8 fighters were revving their 1,000 miles per hour jet engines.

In all the feverish activity among the planes, no one seemed concerned of the distress being caused in the galley, of cakes listing to port.

Portable Television, Man's Ring Stolen

A portable television set and man's wedding ring, valued at a total of about $300, were reported stolen Thursday by Ira Julian Evans of 1222 Irwin Street, San Rafael. Police said a locked door at Evans' home appeared to have been pried.

Neighbors gave officers a description of a man seen near Evans' apartment.

Theft Of $400

More than $400 in coins and dollar bills was taken from the home of Jack Campbell at 1199 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow, sometime Thursday, sheriff's deputies reported. The home was entered through a rear window, deputies reported.

Four Injured; Auto Off Road

Four young men were injured at 2:45 p.m. Friday when the car they were riding in skidded off the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road near Nicasio Road, smashed into a dirt embankment and overturned, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Treated at Novato General Hospital for bruises and abrasions were Henry E. Frederickson, 21, of Santa Rosa; Glenn Myers, 21, of Petaluma; Jack G. Orme, 19, of Windsor, Sonoma County, and Steve Mache, 19, of Santa Rosa. Mache also suffered a head cut.

The driver, Frederickson, told the patrol he met an oncoming car as he rounded a curve.

Auto Hits Tree; Driver Is Hurt

Ernest Dale Stoker, 38, of 2177 Mill Road, Novato, injured when his car hit a tree in Novato, was reported in good condition subsequently at Marin General Hospital. He suffered broken ribs and a cut nose.

The California Highway Patrol said Stoker was driving on Novato Boulevard at 4:40 p.m. Thursday when a car driven by Gerald Potter, 32, of 260 Shevelin Road, Novato, pulled out from a stop sign on San Marin Drive. Stoker swerved to miss Potter's car and struck the tree, the patrol said.

Potter was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

LILY FAST

Portraitist To Show Work At Peacock Gap Kennel Show

Lily Fast, nationally known animal portraitist and former San Franciscan, will be introduced and show her paintings at the Sept. 15 annual Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club all-breed confrontation and obedience show at Peacock Gap Country Club.

Twelve of the artist's latest portraits will highlight the 16-ring Peacock Gap dog show, according to Mrs. John D. Hampton of Mill Valley, Sir Francis Drake Kennel Club president. Several paintings are currently displayed at a pet shop in Strawberry Town and Country Village.

The artist will be the guest of Baroness W. J. vanHeeckeren of San Rafael and the baroness's daughters, Mrs. E. M. Shanley, also of San Rafael, and Mrs. John H. Jewett of San Francisco.

After the show Lily will be joined by her husband, Carl, a consulting mathematician, since they plan to buy a home in the Bay Area, preferably Marin County. Among her other plans is to renew friendships with Mill Valley residents, the George F. Jaglas (Maggie is the Pebble People artist); Mrs. Robert B. Alexander, Oakland Holy Names faculty member, and Mrs. Alexander's brother, Walter Herbert, general director of both the Houston, Tex., and San Diego opera associations, who is a frequent visitor in his sister's home.

A NATIVE of Manitoba, Canada, and present resident of Norwalk, Conn., Lily is a former professional singer who studied for a career in opera, but her obvious artistic talent plus a great love of animals inspired her to devote full time to this highly specialized facet of art seven years ago.

She has painted almost 40 different breeds of dogs since 1961, and a Lily Fast hangs in homes and offices of dog lovers from coast to coast.

Most unusual feature of her work is that she paints her mute, fur-bearing subjects from life, but only after getting to know them personally to observe expression and personality via several leisurely visits in the owner's home.

The meticulous artist obtains a swatch of hair to study natural fur direction, color tones and textures before she even picks up her brushes and palette to begin. She also makes some pencil sketches and often takes her own polaroid photos of her subjects.

"However, my camera shots are mainly for skeletal reference or to capture a favorite pose or expression requested by the pet's owner," Lily explained. "As with all living things, movement and appearance change from moment to moment." She has found that bone structure in an animal is as vital to beauty and bearing as it is in a human being.

ANYONE WHO has ever tried to coax a child to "be still" for a fleeting pose will marvel at Lily's ability to charm her furry models into sitting or lying in relative quiet while she paints. It is near-magic, that Pied Piper quality Latins describe as "sympatico," springing naturally from her great warmth for animals, which they instinctively feel and respond to.

This, combined with her practice of painting in the familiar security of the owner's home, which puts the dog, cat, ocelot or raccoon at ease, is her secret.

Lily's raccoon portraits feature her own former pet in Connecticut. This is just one reason she hopes she and her husband, who are childless, will settle in Marin so that she can observe and sketch the appealing masked creatures as they roam free in a wooded setting.

She has also painted people and horses, but discovered she preferred pets to people, and especially the smaller members of the animal world.

LILY SAYS that it is not just owners of show champions who want animals immortalized in oils. At least half of her large collection of animal art was commissioned out of sheer affection for and pride in a beloved family pet.

The painter is equally expert in pastels and oils, but in painting animals she prefers the latter medium, since oils afford the unique characteristics which mark her work. These are greater gloss and sheen of the coat, depth and luster of the eyes and even wetness of the nose which make her portraits almost move and bark.

Lily has also created covers for "Cats" magazine and "Dog World," and her work appears on calendars and gift-wrap material, but she feels her most ambitious and unusual undertaking is painting a

Computer Replaces Fabled Schoolhouse

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Once upon a time, it was the little red schoolhouse that symbolized education of America's youth. Today, it's more often the huge gray computer and the blinking television screen.

Changes in U.S. education methods have been as rapid as changes in the U.S. economy, the population growth, urbanization, habits and customs.

Instead of the lunchpail, there are the hot lunch programs in almost every school in the nation.

CHILDREN ARE BUSSED to school, and the teacher of today may not worry about even one grade, let alone all eight of them, but be part of a new method called the teacher team system.

Lest one misunderstand and think the "little red schoolhouse" is passe, there still are some 6,700 one-teacher schools in the United States.

AS THE U.S. POPULATION reaches the 200 million mark, it is estimated that school enrollment of the 5-17 age group in September will be 51.3 million.

More than two million teachers and other personnel are required to handle these children. That's an increase of some 53 per cent over the staff at work 10 years ago.

Anyway you look at it, education in the United States is big business. Total cost of public education — elementary, secondary and higher educational institutions — was estimated at $41 billion in 1967-68.

WHAT ARE THE CHILDREN and the taxpayers getting for these billions of dollars?

More formal schooling than ever before, for one thing.

But at the tots through teens level, students also are getting expanded programs. Expanded facilities, experiments in new learning processes, new tools for the classroom, new opportunities for the disadvantaged and the gifted alike.

TWELVE GIFTED junior high schoolers, for instance, worked with two teachers and volunteers doing laboratory research in such topics as the microbiology of the environment and genetics.

For a group of mentally slow pupils in a rural Midwestern school, academic subjects were combined with recreational projects such as field trips to points of interest like a dairy, a police station, a greenhouse.

Foreign language study of some type is available widely in the American school system today — Spanish and French especially.

Foreign language instruction no longer is just at the high school level but starts with conversational study at the first grade. And part of the enrichment program at the high school and college level is in working in some foreign travel and study.

EDUCATORS SAY use of television as a teaching tool still has a long way to go.

As for the computer, its use is growing but it still is an expensive tool for school systems. It has found its way into time and money-saving in administrative chores, but so far its classroom uses are largely at the college level and as a teacher supplement.

Undoubtedly, the $41 billion a year is providing Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews with better education than ever before.

Marin Women

MRS. THOMAS DAHLGREN

President Of League

Mrs. Thomas Richard Dahlgren of San Anselmo will head the Family Service League of Marin. As a member for the past four years, she has been vice president, program chairman and special projects chairman.

The league provides financial support to the Family Service Agency of Marin and interprets the agency's work to the community. The Family Service Agency is a family counseling agency providing help with marital difficulties, parent-child problems and individual personality adjustment problems. It also provides consultation to other people and agencies working with troubled people and works to develop needed community services.

For the first time this year the Family Service League is bringing a series of six morning programs to Marin. The series, AM, will feature personalities in art drama, world affairs and adventure. They will continue selling Christmas cards designed by a local artist and operating the Family Service League Shop in Mill Valley. Social actives planned include a luncheon and fashion show this month, a membership tea, a playday in May and a cocktail party in June.

Joy Dahlgren attended schools in Sacramento and was graduated from the University of California. A 10-year-resident of Marin, she and her husband, a banker, have four sons: Dick, 7, Jack, 5, Peter, 3, and Bob, 10 months old.

The new president is also active in the San Anselmo Pre-School Center. She says her activities and children do not leave her much time for hobbies, but she enjoys playing the piano, baking bread, gardening, taking home movies, sewing, hiking, studying science with the children and studying current social problems and ways of alleviating them. She also adds, "I love to ski and swim, but we don't have very much time for that either."

Serving with Mrs. Dahlgren will be Mesdames Thomas Wynn, first vice president; Raye Murray, second vice president; James E. Coyle, recording secretary; Leo Souza, corresponding secretary; and Carlton Banigan, treasurer.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Shared Apartment Takes Away Romance For College Couple

DEAR HELEN:

Mary and I shared an apartment while we were getting our Masters Degrees at the university. We are both 25, and liked the arrangement, though we agreed it might not end in marriage.

However, we were so compatible that we have decided it might work out permanently.

Here's my problem. As soon as I proposed marriage to Mary, she moved out. She says I must "date" her for six months, as if I hadn't lived with her for a year, so that when we marry, she'll feel married, not just legally lived with. She says otherwise we'd be drifting into a situation that we should have to strive for.

Her alternative is to get married right now, but live in separate apartments for six months. She's got a crazy idea that this will add romance to our relationship and keep us from taking each other for granted.

What's with her anyway? — LARRY

DEAR LARRY:

What's with her is that your thoroughly modern Mary hasn't tossed away her thoroughly upright upbringing after all. She wants to be wooed. For six months, she'd like the horse before the cart — a young man ringing the door bell rather than turning a key in the lock — before you gallop off into the sunset. I think you'll have a better marriage if you humor her. (And I doubt it takes six months!)

Happy romancing.—H.

DEAR HELEN:

A friend and I were discussing announcements — wedding, graduation, etc. She said she'd love to send announcements of her daughter's wedding to friends who had known her as a child, but she didn't want them to feel obligated about gifts. At graduation time, we face this same problem.

A "no gifts" notation would be gauche. We could write individual notes, of course, but this brings up the same difficulties, even if we had the time. — ANY IDEAS?

DEAR ANY:

Casual friends need not feel obligated about gifts when they receive announcement cards. A note of congratulations and best wishes is sufficient. — H.

gallery of heroic dogs who have earned fame through amazing feats of courage and gallantry. When completed, this rare, canine collection will be used throughout the United States as a part of the Humane Society's extensive membership and animal care and kindness projects.

A majority of the "Brave Dogs" gallery are canines who have saved their masters' and other people's lives by alerting them to fire. Others have saved lives by routing would-be attackers, and some have saved men, women and children from drowning.

Lily lauded the work of the Humane Society through its many nationwide chapters and said the first thing she does when moving to a new area is to join the local organization.

"I WORRY CONSTANTLY about animals," she sighed. "And the people I fear and distrust are those who mistreat or abandon a helpless animal. If they would only take the time to call the Humane Society."

As a tangible expression of her deep concern, Lily frequently donates uncommissioned paintings to benefit the Humane Society. Author Cleveland Amory, a director of the Humane Society of the United States, is personally responsible for three of her best known works — a cat, a dog and a wolf, which were displayed at the national exhibit at the New York World's Fair three years ago.

Lily recalled it was simple enough to supply dog and cat paintings, but it required the unusual but dignified cooperation of a wolf at the Philadelphia zoo to furnish the third.

Lily says the Fasts move too often to own a dog, but they are "owned by a jet black, venerable alley cat named Hector, who appeared at their door almost 20 years ago and stayed on "because he liked my cooking." Hector is a complete ham and melts into a beguiling pose if his mistress even looks his way. He is one of her favorite subjects, of course.

LILY FONDLY recalls that of her many subjects, German shepherds and boxers are the most patient, poodles the most vain and saucy, cats always want to play with the brushes, and ocelots have the most beautiful, liquid eyes.

Most often asked questions concerning the amount of time needed to do a painting and most popular sizes. She said it takes from two to three days actual working time for completion of a picture, and that favorite sizes are 8x10 and 16x20 inches.

If fine art is going to the dogs, one way to go is Fast.

Halloween

Timed for the Halloween market are pumpkin faces for flashlights. Instead of the traditional glass area lighting up, the snap-in faces turn trick and treating into a safety idea for the youngsters. When the ghosts have gone, snap the regular face of the light back in.

Are Wives Helping Mates?

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — I suspect the men finally are striking back, once more asserting who's boss around the house. Two matters create this suspicion that a subtle, powerful lobby for the masculine mystique is at work.

The other day it was an article on coddling the "frail" husband to lengthen his life. The article, appearing in the New York State Health Department's "Health News" told how to help him relax from the tensions of today's earning and living, how to rearrange his diet to get his waistline back to the day you married him.

That article mentioned in this column brought a 10-page handwritten response of total anger from a woman who shall remain anynomous; but she wondering just what right any man has to ask the soft touch.

Now, across the desk comes "A Married Woman's Guide to the Married Man," guaranteed to set that one woman correspondent and others who feel as she does off on a new wave of ire. "Once papa was all," declares this humorous look at home life then and now. "Man ruled his household, there was no doubt about that, and father took his ease each evening in Morris chair or porch swing . . .

"It was a time when married woman respected married man for his knowledge and with grandiose expertise, he could lecture learnedly on the state of the world."

Then one fine day "someone, somewhere ate an artichoke and lived to tell about it. Civilization was on the march to a more gracious way of life. Because of it, the relationship between married man and married woman was changing. Married woman was becoming bolder! Married man found some of his grand rights eroding and his status slipping. Out went his moose head and the great stuffed wall-eyed pike! Out went the picture of Uncle Eugene with the Second Pennsylvania Rifles at Shiloh!"

Finally says the publication, we've come to an "emancipated age, where everything is hip or mod or smashing and groovy, and everyone is young forever and informed up to and beyond their ears about everything. . .

"The doomsday cries of the newscasters ring out over the crackle and crunch at the breakfast table and everywhere there are devilments and dire warnings . . .

"Is it any wonder that married man sometimes marches off to his daily duties with trembling fingers and twitching eyes and a face the color of modeling clay!"

You might know who's compiled a publication all out for the male. Why the Cigar Institute of America, of course, in defense of most of its customer. Never mind that some women also like cigars.

Then the guide turns to the business of keeping the marriage happy by bowing to "Himself!", that noble soul who goes forth each cruel Monday morning, jaunty and fresh and crisp from shower and shave. Off to the bitter wars of business, to earn the keep for all in his castle. Never mind, either, that there are some 29 million working women in the U.S.A

But again, papa should be all. "Sometimes, you must help your man put on his image the way you help a small lad button up his Doctor Dentons," it says. "It's as simple as that . . . what he seeks is your approval and admiration and the same respect his grandfather was accorded in his household when he ruled it with majesty."

Get rid of some of the feminine gimcracks around, for instance. "It can grind a man to a fine cutting edge to find his bed chamber is really a boudoir. It mocks his masculinity to tie his tie at a dressing table with a flouncy skirt."

Naturally, there would be a section on feeding the man, not the "culinary horrors . . . of some women's magazines" but "our married man yearns for the food of yesteryear . . . robust stews and thick curries and soups of lentils and Navy beans . . . potato salads, hot and with bacon . . ."

And about his favorite chair. "You can set aside at least a corner . . . where Married Man can surround himself with his comforts and his masculine conceits."

As for television, he should be able to watch his favorite sports, shouting for a first down "without rattling the geegaws on the credenza."

NEWLYWEDS Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bruce Stock Jr. (Laurie Ann McClurg) will live in San Jose while they complete their senior year at San Jose State College this fall. The couple exchanged vows at St. Luke's Presbyterian Church in San Rafael and greeted guests at a reception afterward at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Avery McClurg of San Rafael. (Roger Bockrath photo).

Certificate Due Study

The Marin County Board of Education will consider granting a special teaching certificate to a teacher for Afro-American literature at the College of Marin at a meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the county schools office.

Lewis Barrett Welch, a poet and teacher, does not qualify for a standard teaching credential, according to Louis H. Herkenhoff, acting college president.

Herkenhoff said in his letter of recommendation to the board that finding qualified instructors for five courses in Afro-American history and culture authorized by the college trustees has proved difficult.

Welch is thoroughly familiar with the subject, Herkenhoff said, but does not have a master's degree.

The board will be asked to grant him a "standard subjects teaching credential for a person of outstanding eminence."

Civic Center Key In Brief Case Taken From Storer

A key to the Civic Center was in a brief case stolen from Supervisor Thomas T. Storer last week, according to San Rafael police.

However, Donald R. Frost, county public works director who doubles as Civic Center overseer, said the key opens only the main door, the supervisors' chambers "and a few others." It is not a master key to all the doors in the building, Frost said.

Storer reported the briefcase, also containing personal papers and a transistor radio, was stolen either from his San Rafael law office or his car parked on Fourth Street Wednesday evening.

Cultivating Friendly Votes

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Chinese farmers cultivating rice and cabbages in the African bush are raising a crop of friendly votes for Nationalist China at the United Nations.

Rarely have hoes, seeds and fertilizers been more effective as tools of diplomacy. The harvest in goodwill pays off handsomely in the annual General Assembly contest over the China seat.

The African vote is crucial on the question of unseating Nationalist China in favor of Red China.

Nearly a third of the 124 U.N. member nations are in the African group. Most are relative latecomers. Their China policies often are more flexible than older members with long-established policy stands.

Nationalist China's closest call was in 1965, when the assembly split, 47-47 with 20 abstentions, over whether to give the China seat to the Peking Communist regime.

But Nationalist China received comfortable margins in 1966 and 1967, mainly because of switches in the African vote and addition of two new African states to the United Nations.

Out of 14 new or changed African votes, 12 moved to oppose Peking's admission or to abstain. Only Senegal and Burundi, which abstained in 1965, decided to support Communist Chinese membership.

Peking-Taipei rivalry for influence and support in emerging Africa has been keen.

Since 1963 Communist Premier Chou En-Lai has made four extended trips to Africa.

The Communist Chinese are building a 1,000-mile, $280 million railway from landlocked Zambia's rich copper belt to the Tanzanian port of Dar Es Salaam.

But several Africa capitals have been disenchanted with Red Chinese aid programs because they were slow to materialize or were believed to be vehicles for fomenting domestic revolutions.

Nationalist China has not tried to compete with the multi-million dollar aid operations the Communists have underway in Tanzania. Instead, over the past seven years, it has tried to win the friendship of new African regimes with modest farm programs.

Starting with a land reclamation project in Liberia, Nationalist China has set up farm demonstration teams in 20 African nations.

With simple implements but sophisticated techniques, Chinese farmers have worked the fields with African farmers to prove they can get five or six times as much out of the land.

The Nationalist Chinese take pride in their African projects.

Some 570 trained agricultural workers have been sent to Africa by Nationalist China since the program started. Another 350 farmers from 20 countries attended seminars in Taipei for six months of technical training and field tours.

Trumpets Are Stars At Mozart Festival

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Trumpets were the stars in numbers in the Bach to Mozart group's eighth annual Mozart Festival yesterday afternoon in Stolte Grove, Homestead Valley, but there were many other musical highlights in the unusual program.

Compositions featuring trumpets opened and closed the first half and also made a brilliant finale for the concert. Of these the most impressive was the opening Concerto for Seven Trumpets and Percussion by J. E. Altenberg because of the antiphonal effect created by the trumpets of Edward Haug, Tom Poole, Robert Brandt and Lester Lovitt on the stage, answered or echoed by those of Ralph La Canna, B. Randall Sykes and Gary Leyva at some distance under the redwoods.

In Mozart's Divertimento K. 188 for two oboes, five trumpets and percussion, using all the above trumpets except Leyva and Levit, more than sharing honors were the oboes of Ray Duste and Eleanor Biondi. An able tympanist was Peggy Lucchesi.

These oboists, plus another, Carolyn Michaelian, contributed to the success of the finale, the Concerto for Trumpet by Albinoni, in which trumpeter Edward Haug shone except for one passage possibly due to the potentially temperamental behavior of trumpets outdoors. Virginia Ojeda achieved some beautifully light fingered work on the bassoon in this work.

The real showcase for oboes, however, was the A. Vivaldi Concerto for Two Oboes played by Duste, a master of the instrument, and Eleanor Biondi, a former pupil. Not only was each instrument handled with precision and subtle expressiveness, but the rhythmic rapport between them was excellent.

A major highlight because of its exquisite balance among the four instruments and because it was new to us was the Quartet for Clarinet and Strings by B. H. Crusell, a master Finnish clarinetist born just about 19 years before Mozart, yet the piece was very Montzartian. Frealon Bibbons, one of the best clarinetists we have heard, made that part sheer magic but never allowed it to dominate the violin of George Nagata, viola of Tom Heimberg and cello of Ellen Dessler.

Although Edgar Jones' rich baritone was well suited to "Die Jung Magd," and his performance impeccable, we felt this was the mistake of the afternoon. A very long and doleful German song cycle did not seem right for this kind of occasion.

Despite the beguiling lyricism of the famous serenade from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," enhanced by the delicate mandoline playing of Gail Denny, Jones' style in this seemed a bit too mannered. His forte is baroque, as heard in the J. S. Bach aria "Meine Seufzer, Meine Traenen."

The noted concert pianist Roy Bogas was fortunately able to provide the continuo on the harpsichord, in place of Margaret Fabrizio, who could not be present.

How Will Athletes Fare In High Altitude Games?

VAN DELLEN

Having the Olympic Games in Mexico City has stimulated considerable interest on performance at high altitudes (7,349 feet).

Medical and Training Services Committee chairman, Dr. Merritt H. Stiles, believes that many of the symptoms are of a psychological nature. The person unconsciously breathes faster, loses too much carbon dioxide and develops alkalosis. The latter causes lightheadedness along with numbness and tingling of the extremities.

At high altitudes, there is less atmospheric pressure resulting in less absorption of oxygen through the walls of the air sacs of the lungs. Dr. Stiles does not consider this significant since most of us use only 15 to 25 per cent of the available oxygen.

AT 7,300 FEET, performance should not be affected in field events or in running, swimming, or other activities which do not require more than two minutes of maximum effort.

In other words, enough oxygen is available for short periods of time, and since there is less air resistance, the athlete may be able to run faster than at sea level.

Prolonged exertion demands more oxygen. A mile runner can never equal his sea-level time, no matter how long he trains.

ADAPTATION to pressure is fastest in the athlete in good condition and, more so, if he trains vigorously during the first day or two in Mexico City. Circulation to the lungs and the output of the heart increase through daily physical training and compensate for the lower oxygen uptake.

In this regard, these organs are in the same condition as they would be after weeks of adaptation to altitude. The situation may change when the athlete takes it easy after reaching 7,300 feet due to the effects of de-training.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the I-J.)

QUININE AS REMEDY

Mr. J. writes: What is quinine used for?

REPLY

Quinine is used in certain heart conditions, such as irregularity of the beat, and to prevent cramping of the leg muscles at night. It also is used in obstetrics and in a resin which is used to determine the presence or absence of acid in the stomach. More effective medications have superseded its use in malaria.

VIRAL PNEUMONIA

C. G. writes: Is viral pneumonia contagious?

REPLY

Yes, but less contagious than measles, mumps, and many other infections.

TONSILS AND VOICE

Mrs. W. writes: My 16-year-old daughter expects to sing professionally. Now we are told that she has swollen glands in the neck and her tonsils may have to come out. Will this affect her career?

REPLY

No, but before surgery, make certain the tonsils are responsible for glandular swelling.

GASTRIC BLEEDING

A reader writes: Could anything besides ulcer cause stomach hemorrhage?

REPLY

Yes. Enlarged veins in the esophagus (esophageal varicosities) rupture occasionally. And, now and then, bleeding is traced to irritation of the duodenum (duodenitis.)

STRAIN FROM BRA

A reader writes: I think my aching shoulders are due to the strain of my bra and slip straps. What would you suggest?

REPLY

Strapless gear may solve the problem, if your diagnosis is correct.

GARLIC NIGHTCAP

A reader writes: Every night I eat a clove of garlic before retiring. Is this practice healthful or harmful?

REPLY

Neither, but it is smellful. Garlic is not poisonous, nor is it rich in essential food elements.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT —

An improperly applied tourniquet may increase bleeding.

It Was Sweet Revenge For Raiders Over The 49ers

By JOE SARGIS

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—It was a great victory for the Oakland Raiders —their 26-19 decision yesterday over San Francisco.

For the 49ers, it was a game of missed opportunities and total frustration.

"We made all the mistakes and still won," said Oakland linebacker Dan Conners. "They have no alibis for this one."

Conners was half right about the mistakes. Each side committed quite a few but the Raiders made up for theirs with hard-nosed football while the 49ers hardly ever recovered from theirs, especially two key interceptions thrown by John Brodie just when it seemed the 49ers might stage a last quarter comeback.

Daryl Lamonica played a little more than half of the game—seen by a near capacity crowd of 57,593 in Kezar Stadium—and while he was in there the Raiders scored four times—on 36 and 53 yard TD throws by Daryle, a seven yard run by Hewritt Dixon and a perfectly executed 28-yard option pass by halfback Clem Daniels.

George Mira directed the 49ers, who went down to their fourth exhibition loss in five games, to two of their scores while he was at the helm in the first half. Kermit Alexander scored the third S.F. TD when he ran a punt back 57 yards.

One thing the cross-bay grudge battle did though was end the quarterback experiment for the 49ers.

"This ends it," said a disappointed coach Dick Nolan. "We are all through experimenting and I'll name my No. 1 quarterback after I get through evaluating the two men (Mira and Brodie) over the last five game period."

If yesterday's game with Oakland is a measuring stick, as it must surely be, then Mira has won the job. George wasn't especially sharp, hitting on only four of 14 passes but he appeared to have better command of the team than Brodie.

John connected on 13 of 29 but missed at least four times when he had a man in the clear. The two interceptions he threw don't figure to help much either.

The Raiders, who lost the first "Bay Bowl" game to the 49ers a year ago, were in full charge of this one all the way, even in the final quarter when Oakland head coach John Rauch used his reserves exclusively.

"The game went about as I wanted it to," said Rauch, who finally has beaten a National Football League team. "I used Lamonica as long as I wanted to. Under no circumstances was he going to get back in there once I took him out. Besides, George Blanda did a pretty good job offensively and our defensive team was about as good as can be expected for an exhibition game."

Mira hit John David Crow with a 50-yard screen pass quarter and the 49ers jumped to a 6-0 lead. As things turned out, it was the only time they held the edge.

Lamonica found Dixon with a 36-yard throw to make it 6-6 and Dixon capped a 45-yard drive with a seven yard run to make it 13-6 after Lamonica connected with Dave Kocourek for the extra point.

Jim Johnson intercepted a Lamonica pass on the Oakland 35 and ran it to the 24 late in the second quarter and four plays later Dwight Lee cracked a yard to close the gap to 13-12.

The Raiders wasted a little time in the second half. They needed only seven plays to score on Daniel's option play toss to Fred Biletnikoff and four minutes later Lamonica threw 53 yards to Billy Cannon to wrap it up. He left then in favor of Blanda and the Oakland reserves.

Alexander's score came in the fifth minute of the final quarter to make it close, then followed a series of San Francisco offensive mistakes Nolan is sure to ponder over this week.

Ben Davidson, Oakland's huge defensive end, said he viewed the game as any other, as far as the competition went. However, he summed it all up best for the Raider rooters among the big crowd when he added:

"Now, I guess, it's going to b e a little easier living in the Bay Area."

New Zealanders Run 1-2 In Can-Am Cup Racing

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (AP) — New Zealander Denis Hulme grabbed what looked like an easy victory in the inital 200-mile race of the Canadian-American Cup series yesterday, but revealed he couldn't have lasted more than another lap.

"I had fouled spark plugs in the final five laps," Hulme said. "And I had no oil pressure at the end."

He said he knew where opposition was, and consequently "I had no need to hurry. I would have tried another lap. I would have found some oil somewhere."

Hulme limped across the finish line in a comparatively slow time of 2:06.56 for an average speed of 94.541 miles per hour. On a dry track during Saturday's qualifying heat, Hulme's teammate, Bruce McLaren, had turned the four-mile course in 110.854 m.p.h.

McLaren finished second yesterday, 39 seconds behind Hulme, both driving orange-hued McLaren MK8s. It was the second straight year the New Zealand drivers finished one-two in the Road America Races.

RAIN SHOWERS

Donohue was in fourth place as the 29-car field started the race during a rain shower. He spun off the wet track during the first lap, dropping to 18th.

Disregarding the slippery pavement, Donohue, the U.S. road racing champion, turned the day's fastest lap at 105.64 m.p.h. as he threaded his way through the field.

When Mario Andrett's car blew an engine on the final lap, Donohue took the checkered flag for third and $5,850.

Peter Revson, New York City, finished fourth and Texan Jim Hall's Winged Chaparral was fifth.

"I felt I had a better chance to win because of the rain," Hulme said. "I'm used to running in the rain in Europe."

With one exception, all of the drivers went with rain tires on their low-slung sports car.

Lother Motschenbacher of Beverly Hills, driving a McLaren-Ford, decided against the wet tires and fared poorly until the track dried out in the latter stages of the race. Then he charged up to sixth place and $2,100.

"The track didn't really dry out until around the 30th lap," Hulme said. "I thought about changing tires, but I knew that everyone else was running on 'wet' tires."

Homers Spark Oakland

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Athletics face the American League-leading Detroit Tigers in a three-game series and can take consolation in the probability they won't have to bat against 27-game winner Denny McLain.

McLain won his 27th yesterday as the Tigers downed Baltimore, 7-3, increasing their lead to seven games.

Mickey Lolich, 13-8, and Joe Sparma, 9-10, were the scheduled Detroit pitchers in today's doubleheader against Oakland's Lew Krausse, 9-10, and Jim Nash, 10-11.

The teams meet Wednesday and the Athletics are off Thursday before entertaining fourth-place Cleveland.

Oakland clung to the first division — they are fifth, 16½ games behind—as Reggie Jackson and Sal Bando ripped homers in a 5-2 victory yesterday over the California Angels at Anaheim.

BIG INNING

Jackson's homer, his 26th, followed a walk to pitcher John Odom in the sixth and put the score at 3-0. Bando hit his ninth homer in the same inning after Danny Cater singled.

Oakland scored its first run in the fifth on Bando's double, a sacrifice fly and a wild pitch by Angels' pitcher Clyde Wright, 8-5.

Odom got credit for his 13th victory against nine losses, but didn't last through the sixth inning as the Angels scored their two runs.

Gary Player Sets Pace In T'Bird

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Gary Player, who usually plans very well, is watching all his plans go astray.

As a result, he might win the $150,000 Thunderbird Golf Classic.

Player, who planned to use the tournament only as warm-up for next week's World Series of Golf, fired a two-under-par 70 yesterday to take a two-stroke lead into today's final round.

And he did it primarily because of an eagle 3 at the 555-yard seventh hole, where he had no plans to reach the green in two but did anyway.

Player's 70 gave him a 207 for the three rounds, two strokes better than first-round leader Bob Murphy, who had a 71 for 209.

Homero Blancas, with a 69, was at 210; Bob Lunn, 68, and Australian Bruce Crampton, 73, at 211, and pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus, 70, at 212. Defending champion Arnold Palmer went to a 74 and was at 215.

Player was one over par for his round when he reached the seventh. He was still 295 yards from the green after his first shot and took out a three wood for his second.

"There were still fellows standing on the green when I hit," he said. "I had no inten-

Giants Bow To L.A., Face Tough September Schedule

CHICAGO (AP) — The San Francisco Giants, hoping to tighten their hold on second place in the National League, have their work cut out for them.

They are scheduled to play their next 21 straight games against the league's first-division clubs, starting with a doubleheader today against the fourth-place Chicago Cubs.

San Francisco sent Juan Marichal, 23-7, and Bob Bolin, 7-4, against Chicago's Ken Holtzman, 9-10, and Gary Ross, 1-1. As the teams took the field Chicago trailed the Giants by a slim 2½ games.

Despite a 3-2 loss yesterday to the Los Angeles Dodgers, San Francisco managed to hold onto a one-game lead over Cincinnati. The Redlegs, 13 games off the pace, lost to Philadelphia and failed to grab a share of the runner-up spot.

San Francisco's defeat at Candlestick Park allowed the last-place Dodgers to finish the season series against the Giants with a 9-9 mark. Los Angeles won five of nine games in the Giants' ballpark.

SADECKI LOSES

The Dodgers had lost eight straight games to left-handers including San Francisco's Mike McCormick, who won 5-1 Saturday. But they broke the string against Giant southpaw Ray Sadecki, 12-15.

Right-hander Bill Singer, 10-15, outpitched the San Franciscan although both tossed five-hitters. Singer retired 19 of the last 21 men he faced, capping his performance by getting pinch-hitter Willie Mays on a foul pop.

Jim Hart gave the Giants a 1-0 lead in the second inning with his 21st home run of the season. In the fourth the Dodgers grabbed a 2-1 lead, aided by a wild throw by Sadecki.

Bart Shirley walked and Willie Davis doubled him to third. Jim Lefebvre slammed one back at Sadecki who knocked it down. Davis broke for third,

TAHOE TRAINING

U.S. Track Team Sets Two More World Marks

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (AP) — U.S. track and field stars conquered heat and high altitude while bettering two world records at the final intrasquad meet in preparation for the Mexico City Olympic Games.

Vince Matthews of Johnson Smith College, Charlotte, N.C., raced 400 meters Saturday in 44.4 seconds to wipe out Tommie Smith's 44.5 record set at San Jose last year.

Lee Evans of San Jose State College finished the 600 meters in 1:14.3 to rub out Army Cpl. Tom Farrell's mark established here a month ago.

The American athletes, competing in 90-degree heat, performed at an Echo Summit site nestled in the Sierra Nevada at 7,377 feet.

The level is 28 feet higher than Mexico City, where some say many athletes may feel the effects of altitude.

Performances in the 600 meters were unusual—three other men who placed behind Evans also bettered the old record. They were Larry James of Villanova, Marck Wincinried of Wisconsin and Ron Freeman of Arizona State.

Army veteran Mel Pender took the 100-meter dash by a stride from John Carlos of Santa Clara Youth Village. Both were timed in 10 seconds flat, trying the world record.

A Sad September Song For The O's

By HAL BOCK

As the days dwindle down to a precious few, it begins to look like Baltimore's September song will be a sad one after all.

The Orioles arrived in Detroit Friday for a three-game series, six games behind the American League leading Tigers and full of hope.

They left Detroit yesterday seven games behind and with one eye on the calendar and the other on the scoreboard. Baltimore new needs help from the rest of the league to catch the front runners, after dropping two out of the three games.

Denny McLain won the rubber game of the series yesterday, beating the Orioles 7-3 for his 27th victory of the year and starting a triple play that might have signalled the last stirring of the Orioles for 1968.

25 TO GO

The Orioles, who had cut the Tigers' lead to four games in the middle of last week before dropping two straight to Washington, have 25 games left to play—the same number as the Tigers.

Should Detroit play breaks even baseball and win 13, the Orioles would have to win 20 of 25 to catch the Tigers.

McLain, 27-5, was rocked early and led 4-3 after the Orioles had scored a run on a walk and singles by Curt Blefary and Frank Robinson in the third.

Boog Powell slammed a wicked liner back at the pitcher, and McLain caught it belt high. He whirled and fired to shortstop Tom Matchick, catching Blefary for the second out, and Matchick's throw to first baseman Norm Cash got Robinson and retired the side.

McLain, who struck out nine, pitched a seven-hitter and became the first American League pitcher to win 27 games since Detroit's Paul Trout and Hal Newhouser did it in 1944.

AFL Still Leads Inter-Loop Play

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The National Football League won most of the weekend battles but the American League still leads the over-all war.

Despite losing four of the five interleague exhibitions, the 9-year-old AFL boats an 11-9 margin in head-to-head competition against its 49-year-old rival with three games remaining—one of them today's meeting of the Philadelphia Eagles and Boston Patriots at Cambridge, Mass.

The NFL had a chance to even things up yesterday but Oakland's AFL champs scored two quick touchdowns in the third period and held off the San Francisco 49ers 26-19. In yesterday's other action, St. Louis and Minnesota of the NFL took over some prime TV time and the Cardinals won a 31-28 thriller. It was the first football game to be televised nationally on a Sunday night.

Saturday night's scores: Dallas, NFL, 33, Houston, AFL, 19; Los Angeles, NFL, 36, Kansas City, AFL, 16; Baltimore, NFL, 22, Miami, AFL, 13; Green Bay, NFL, 21, Pittsburgh, NFL, 17; Atlanta, NFL, 16, New Orleans, NFL, 10.

Friday night, Cleveland, NFL topped Buffalo, AFL, 22-12 while Cincinnati edged the New York Jets 13-9 and San Diego nipped Denver 6-3 in AFL contests.

WEEKEND LEAVE

Charley Johnson, on weekend leave from the Army, guided St. Louis 88 yards in five plays and passed 11 yards to Dave Williams with 1:19 remaining for the touchdown that beat the Vikings.

Johnson took over in the third quarter after Jim Hart completed 11 of 14 passes for 150 yards and two TDs. Minnesota had taken a 28-24 lead moments before the winning tally when Karl Kassulke intercepted a Johnson pass and returned it 44 yards.

Another backup quarterback, Dallas' Craig Morton, led a second-half surge as the Cowboys defeated Houston before 52,289 pairs of Texas eyes in the Astrodome. It was the Oilers' first preseason loss in five games.

Morton directed two scoring drives that gave the Cowboys a 27-12 lead and, after Houston closed to 27-19, he threw a 36-yard touchdown pass to Craig Baynham that put the game out of reach. Baynham also caught a 40-yard TD pass from Don Meredith and scored a third tim on a one-yard run.

101-YARD RUN

Ron Smith's 101-yard kickoff return propelled host Los Angeles past Kansas City, ending the Chiefs' four-game winning streak. The Rams, who held the Chiefs to one touchdown and three Jan Stenerud field goals, took a 16-3 halftime lead as Willie Ellison plunged over from a yard out and Ed Meador ran five yards for a TD on a fake field goal.

Rookie fullback Terry Cole scored on a 59-yard run in the third period and then caught a touchdown pass from Earl Morrall in the final quarter as Baltimore got by Miami.

But the 68,125 Orange Bowl fans went home talking about Miami's young quarterback Bob Griese, who completed 19 of 33 passes for 172 yards. However, the Dolphins' flashy receiver Jack Clancy suffered a knee injury and may be lost for the season.

STARR STARS

Bart Starr threw touchdown passes of 16 and 57 yards to Carroll Dale in pacing Green Bay over Pittsburgh. But new Coach Phil Bengtson, a perfectionist like predecessor Vince Lombardi, wasn't happy.

"We played loosely," he said. "It wasn't just defense or just offense. It was everybody."

Perry Lee Dunn's one-yard plunge in the third period pushed Atlanta past New Orleans in a game marred by a free-for-all before 49,832 in Atlanta. The fight erupted after a field goal attempt early in the game. Atlanta's Tommy Nobis and Dave Whitsell of New Orleans were ejected.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER

GET DELIVERY OFF ON A SHUFFLE

In the four-step approach, the first move toward the foul line is made with the right foot, more of a shuffle than an actual step. It should also be perfectly coordinated with the motion of pushing the ball away from the body. A good start increases your chances for good rhythm all the way.

GIANTS

not noticing that Shirley was still on the base.

Sadecki, unable to get Lefebvre at first, tried to pick off Davis but his throw to second sailed into center field. Shirley scored and Davis wound up on third. He came home on Bob Bailey's sacrifice fly.

Los Angeles scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth as Ken Boyer slammed a two-out triple to right-center field to send Shirley across the plate. Shirley had walked with one out.

The Giants mounted a ninth-inning threat when Ty Cline opened the frame with and single and moved to third on Willie McCovey's single. Cline scored on Hart's fly ball to center but Singer bore down to get Jesus Alou and Mays to end it.

The Giants were one of the league's most successful teams in August, winning 21 of 31 games. San Francisco moundsmen had a sparkling 2.03 earned run average for the month, going the route in 19 of their starts. The team has already set new Giant records with 67 complete games and 19 shutouts.

GOLF WINNER

Golf Amateur Champ 'Retires'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "I'm retiring," young Bruce Fleisher quipped after winning the 68th U.S. Amateur Golf Championship. "It's back to school."

The 19-year-old sophomore at Miami Dade North Junior College, competing in his first National, played the rugged Scioto Country Club course like a veteran pro Saturday.

He refused to buckle under the late charge of Marvin "Vinny" Giles and calmly parred the last three holes for an even par 70 and a 72-hole total of 284.

His score was four-over par and one stroke better than the total posted by Giles, who created the biggest stir at the tournament with a sizzling five-under 65 Saturday.

It was a course record on the 6,762-yard layout but not quite enough for the red-haired 25-year-old University of Virginia law student who lost the Amateur for the second straight year by one stroke.

SIX BIRDIES

His superb round included six birdies and only one bogey as he rallied from six strokes off the pace to come within one when he birdied No. 17.

"Giles played a fantastic round," Fleisher said. "A 65 on the course is unbelievable. I feel very fortunate."

Fleisher, who became the third youngest player ever to capture the National, said he wasn't aware of Giles' hot hand until he came to the 18th hole.

"I'm glad I didn't know sooner. It might have changed the complexion of things."

It was the first major victory for the 6-foot-3, 187-pound Fleisher who started caddying in Wilmington, N.C., at age 7 and started playing a year later. He had rounds of 73, 70, 71 and 70.

Giles, who called Scioto "a demanding golf course," said he would try again for the coveted crown next year.

"For 44 holes I didn't play very well but after that I put everything together," Giles said. He finished 75-72-73-65.

Hickcox In Olympic Swimming Spotlight

By JACK STEVENSON

LONG BEACH (AP)—Charlie Hickcox hails from the desert country, but he does just about everything on water.

The 6-foot-3½ prelaw student at Indiana University has won three events in the U.S. men's Olympic swimming trials, including a pair of world record clockings.

Today, he tackles his fourth race, the 200-meter backstroke and the 21-year-old from Phoenix Ariz., rates as the favorite again.

The next to last day of the competition at Belmont Plaza Pool also sees Don Schollander, the quadruple gold medal winner of the 1964 Olympic Games, seek his second freestyle world record here as he swims the 100 meters.

Schollander won the 200 on Friday night in 1:54.3 to better his own world record.

Hickcox clocked 4 minutes, 39 seconds for the 400-meter individual medley and 2:10.6 for the 200 medley on successive nights and on the third won the 100-meter backstroke in 59.7. That fell short of his own American record of 59.1 and the world standard of 58.4 by Roland Matthes of East Germany.

YOUNGEST SWIMMER

Brian Job, at 16, became the youngest member on the team when he won the 200-meter breaststroke last night in 2:28.95. Mark Spitz of Santa Clara captured the 200 butterfly in 2:05.84.

Job's home is Cortland, Ohio, but he's been living and training at Santa Clara, the past year. George Haines is swim coach there and also head coach of the U.S. Olympic men's team.

Spitz, 18, holds one of the four world records set here already. He won the 100-meter butterfly in 55.6 and then came back to make it two victories by winning the 200.

Two 17-year-olds trailed Hickcox in the backstroke to win places on the squad as the first three in each event qualify. Ronnie Mills of Fort Worth Tex., placed second in 1:00.3. Larry Barbiere of Medford Lakes, N.J., a member of the Philadelphia Vesper Boat Club team, took third at 1:00.7.

Ken Merten of Los Angeles, who qualified in the 100 breaststroke, also made it in the 200 with 2:29.97. Third was Phil Long of Newtown Square, Pa., 2:30.57.

Mexico Won't Cancel Olympics, President Says

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz, in his fourth annual state of the nation address, gave in to some student demands yesterday but said nothing "illegal or troublesome" could force cancellation of the 1968 Olympic Games scheduled to start here Oct. 12.

Striking students who have been conducting antigovernment demonstrations for over a month have recently begun shouting opposition to the games and threatening to try to disrupt them.

The president's concessions to the students included an affirmation of university autonomy, autonomy for polytechnic schools, possible lowering of the voting age from 21 to 18, a promise of serious dialogue to resolve other problems, and an offer of public hearings to see if changes in the federal penal code could be made.

Beardall Captures 30 Kilometer Race

SANTA ROSA (AP) — Darrell Beardall of Santa Rosa took an early lead and finished there to win the Junior National AAU 30 kilometer championships.

Beardall captured yesterday's 18-mile marathon with a time of 1:45.7, two minutes ahead of runner-up Jack Leydig of Southern Illinois University. Third was Bruce Johnson of Orinda, five minutes off the pace.

Bouncy McKinley Steals Show In National Tennis

By WILL GRIMSLEY

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — "Tell Captain Donald Bell I'm ready for another Davis Cup trip to Australia," an overweight but still bouncy Chuck McKinley said facetiously today as he faced Australia's John Newcombe in one of the featured third-round matches of the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

McKinley, former Wimbledon champion and Davis Cup ace, displayed a lot of his oldtime fire and spirit in beating his ex-captain, Vic Seixas, 45, of Villanova, Pa., 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 in the second round yesterday.

Like Seixas, now more interested in selling stocks and bonds than winning tennis trophies, the hustling, hard-hitting McKinley is still capable of a top-notch performance. It could come today against Newcombe, 1967 champion here and seeded fourth.

Third-round matches were to be played in both men's and women's singles, and the heavily favored Rod Laver can expect a little bit of a rest after his close, five-set squeak yesterday.

NEAR UPSET

The Wimbledon champion from Australia faces 47-year-old Pancho Segura. Not so Brazil's brilliant Tomas Koch, who won the first two sets and almost pulled off the tournament's major upset before losing to Laver 6-8, 4-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-4.

"I was fortunate," Laver admitted.

Another match to be watched with interest was to be that between 40-year-old Pancho Gonzales, the onetime king of the courts, and Australian pro Mal Anderson.

Other feature matches pitted America's two Davis cup stars, Arthur Ashe and Clark Graebner, against a pair of Britishers with upset glints in their eyes.

Ashe, who polished off 52-year-old Frank Parker 6-3, 6-2, 6-2, faces Paul Hutchins. Graebner, who eliminated Jim McManus of Berkeley, 6-1, 6-4, 14-12, takes on pro Roger Taylor.

Pros Andres Gimeno and Fred Stolle already have been eliminated. Laver and second-seeded Tony Roche of Australia both have had tight squeaks.

"I never think about whether an opponent is a pro or an amateur," Laver said after the tough Koch match. "To me, everyone is a player."

Miss Mann Wins Calgary Tourney

CALGARY (AP) — Carol Mann, the tall blonde from Buffalo, N.Y., shot a two-under-par 69 yesterday to take an easy victory in the Willow Park Ladies Invitational Open Golf Tournament.

Miss Mann won $2,250 with a total score of 205, eight under par for the tournament. She was 11 strokes in front of her nearest competition.

Bunched in second place were four golfers at 214—Pam Barnett of Menomonee Falls, Wis., Shirley Englehorn of Caldwell, Idaho, Beth Stone of North Key Largo, Fla., and Kathy Whitworth of Dallas. Each received $1,325.

Hoover Predicts College Disorder

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover says the New Left movement plans widespread disorders at American colleges and universities this fall.

"Ecouraged by their 'success' at Columbia (University last spring)," Hoover said, "the anarchists of the New Left movement are boldly spreading the word that they intend to 'create two, three, many Columbias.'"

Hoover, writing in the current issue of the FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, said the main thrust is from the Students for a Democratic Society which will rely on college dissidents to accelerate campus disorders.

Last year 76% of stolen cars were left unlocked; nearly half also had ignition keys in them.
That's the kind of temptation many teen-age boys on a lark, on a dare... find hard to resist.
Most car thieves in this country are teen-agers. It usually turns out bad for them. And often for others, because stolen cars have a 200 times better than average chance of accident.
Young car thieves need your help.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

The Chinese Finesse A Good Item For Your Bag Of Tricks

Since I'm organizing a cruise to the Orient right after Christmas, it behooves me to write a column about the Chinese finesse. This is neither Chinese nor a finesse, but it's a good play to have in your bag of tricks in any part of the world.

TAKES IN DUMMY

South won the first trick in dummy with the ace of clubs and led a trump to the nine in order to try the spade finesse. East won with the queen of spades and returned a low diamond to South's ace.

South ruffed a club with dummy's second trump and returned the third trump to his jack. Now if he ruffed another club with dummy's last trump he would be unable to return to his hand to draw West's last trump. And if South didn't ruff another club he would have only 11 tricks.

Either way South was down one, all because he had taken the normal Occidental finesse in spades.

MUST ACT

After winning the first trick with dummy's ace of clubs, declarer should immediately return the deuce of spades from dummy. This weird play, the Chinese finesse, may or may not be Chinese, but it is certainly not a finesse.

East takes the ten of spades and returns a diamond to the ace. South ruffs a club with the eight of hearts, leads the four of hearts to the nine, ruffs a second club with the ten of hearts and can still get to his own hand by overtaking the king of hearts with the ace.

RUNS SPADES

South then draws the last missing trump and runs the spades, discarding both of his losing cards. He thus scores 1,430 instead of losing 100 points. The difference is significant even if you never travel a hundred miles from home.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ Q 10 6
♦ Q 9 8 2
♣ K 8 5 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two diamonds. You have seven points in high cards and one point for the doubleton, coupled with good trump support. This is easily enough for a raise of partner's suit. If you responded in notrump you would be ignoring the dangerous weakness in hearts.

Stereo Stolen

Peggy S. Banks of 1 Janet Way, Strawberry, reported theft of an auto stereo and tapes valued at $208 from her car while it was parked in front of her apartment Thursday afternoon. Sheriff's deputies said the thief was able to spring a lock to enter the car.

ALMANAC

Today is Monday, Sept. 2, the 246th day of 1968 with 120 to follow. This is Labor Day.

The moon is between the first quarter and its full phase. The mornings star is Mars. The evening stars are Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1935 one of the worst hurricanes to hit the U.S. mainland ripped through the Florida Keys, killing more than 365 persons.

In 1945 Japan signed the unconditional surrender on the American battleship "Missouri" in Tokyo Bay, ending World War II.

In 1964 World War I hero, Sgt. Alvin York, died at the age of 76.

A thought for the day: Latin poet, Manilus, once said, "As soon as we are born we begin to die, and the end depends upon the beginning."

TIME AND TIDE

Department of Commerce, United States Coast Geodetic Survey. Times and heights of tides at San Francisco (Golden Gate):

Executives Move Faster, Farther

NEW YORK (AP) — Restlessness is increasing in the executive suite, where once a man rose step by step, slowly and patiently absorbing the attitudes of the firm, eventually even reaching the top spot if his ladder was long enough.

But look what's happened: one-fifth of today's corporate heads, aside from the "birth elite" who landed in the job because of family ownership, have spent less than three years with their company.

Rather than having come up through their company's ranks, they have climbed the ladder in one or more companies and then leaped sideways and slightly up to their present job or to the jobs just below it.

NEW TERM

This, in the terminology of Dr. Eugene Emerson Jennings, is leveraging, and by 1970, he estimates, every corporate president will have leveraged at least once and that 60 per cent will have leveraged twice.

Leveraging is just one of the tools executives use in today's strenuous climb to the top, a route Jennings feels "is one of the most rigorous tests of emotional control that we have devised except for the presidency."

Jennings is an authority, no question about it. In fact, he is to many THE authority, having written the "Mobile Manager," a handbook that charts and computerizes the study of routes to the top, and other books on the executive mind and emotions.

A PROFESSOR

He is, first of all, a Michigan State professor. But he is also a practicing psychologist, a corporate consultant, an executive counselor. He has spent 20 years questioning and examining executives and their habits and traits.

In today's mobile society, Jennings explains, a man often leverages when his upward route is blocked by a slow moving superior or when he makes a grave mistake he feels cannot be overcome.

By its use, he feels, a lot of good men are finding their way into top spots. And a lot of corporations are finding men whose skills, talents and ideas could not have been developed in one company.

EXECUTIVE A PRO

Today's executive, he has found, considers himself a professional rather than an employee, a man whose talents can be transferred from one corporation to another if necessary. He is less tied by feelings of corporate loyalty. His loyalty is to his profession.

As a result, Jennings feels, leveraging will increase and job contracts, and other binds to a corporation may grow less popular in the near future. To Jennings this is healthy.

By contrast, he points to the shelf sitter, the man who has been blocked and passed by in a corporation. Once known as a shelf sitter, a man isn't likely to get a nod anymore than a housewife is likely to pick up a can of baked beans that has been at the dusty rear of the shelf for a year.

SHELF SITTER

Shelf sitters are shopworn. Generally at some time in their careers they resisted change, resisted new ideas, only to find, Jennings says, that they were resisting a tidal wave. "They were washed aside by men who could control change with new ideas."

Ideas, says Jennings, are what management purchases today. The man who can sell ideas, spell them out and then stand behind them is in great demand. But shelf sitters resist them. For this they pay dearly.

"The greatest penalty in the corporation is paid by the closed mind individual," Jennings believes. Naturally he dislikes his job and doesn't do it well. His home life is hurt, and his body too. "People who don't like their job get old quickly. They regress. They oversubscribe to such things as sleep and alcohol."

DUSTED OFF

Can the shelf-sitter be dusted off? Can he resume his progress in a company? Sometimes, but it's difficult, Jennings feels. "No management group is more difficult to teach than a bunch of shelf sitters." Do they have a future? Yes, in leveraging.

"A shelf sitter in one company can be a standout in another. His weaknesses don't travel as fast as his strengths," Jennings has found.

Airline Earnings Reported Down

NEW YORK (BW) — Pan American World Airways reported July net earnings of $9,893,000, or 29 cents a share, compared with $12,859,000, or 39 cents a share, for the month last year.

Net income for the first seven months was $23,776,000, or 71 cents a share, against $33,700,000, or $1.04 a share, for the like period last year.

Earnings figures have been restated to reflect retroactive reductions in airmail rates ordered by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Total operating revenues for the year to date were up 14 per cent and operating expenses up 19 per cent.

Course To Be Held On Tax Returns

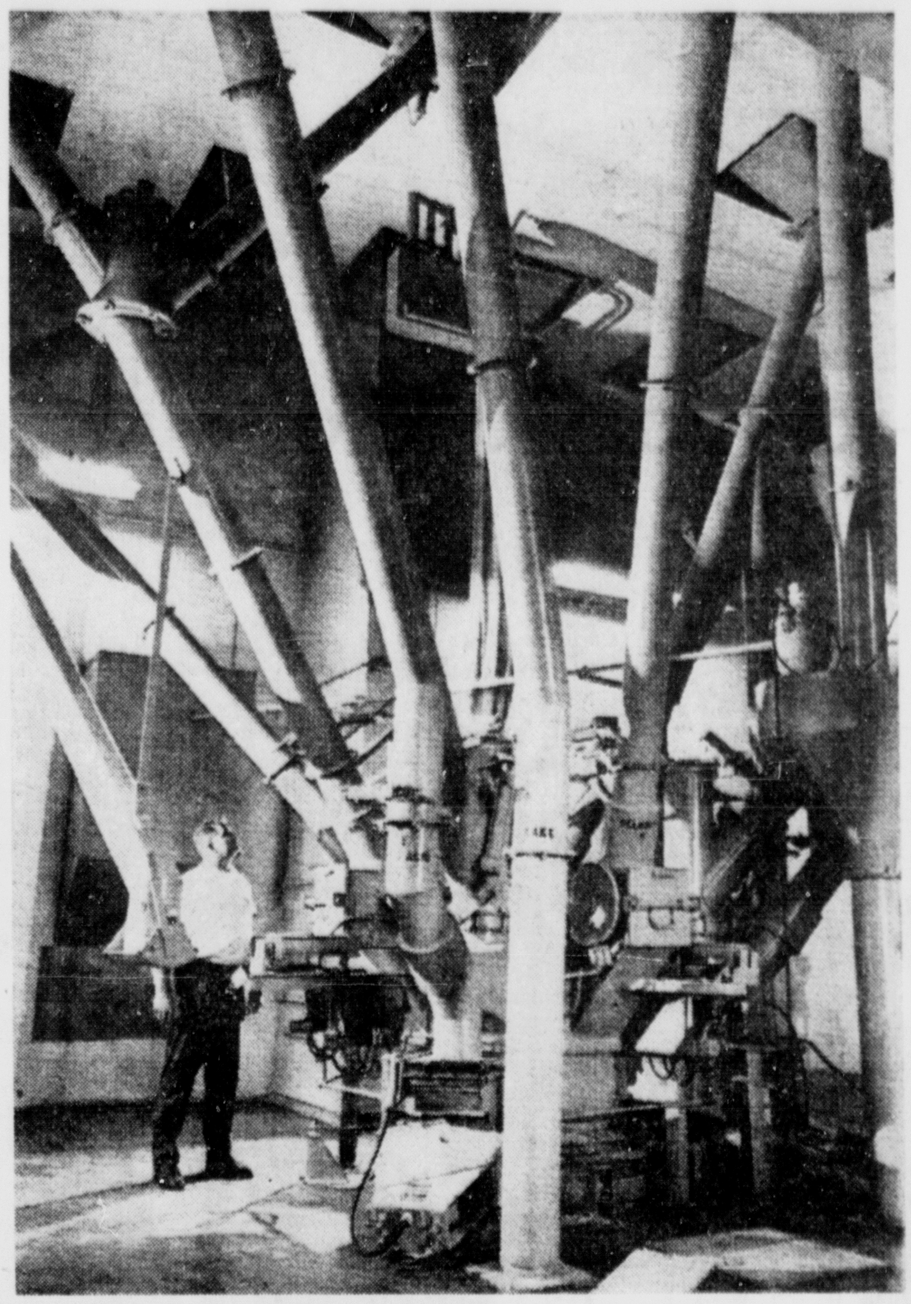
Graduates will be considered for full or part-time employenmt in January through April 15 of next year by the tax consulting firm at 2056 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

Corporation To Up Production Capacity

CLEVELAND, Ohio (BW) — Parker-Hannifin Corp. has reported that it is planning to provide productive capacity to handle an approximate 10 per cent increase in volume during fiscal 1969.

The Cleveland-based company operates four California companies: Parker Aircraft Co. and Rockwell Mechanical Packing Co., Los Angeles; Parker Seal Co., Culver City; and Quick Coupler Division, Oakland.



COMPUTER MIXMASTER

Computer controls operate and monitor this big mixmaster that automatically combines ingredients at glassmaking plant of Westinghouse Electric Corp.'s lamp plant in Salina, Kan. Ingredients slide down chutes from storage bins, are measured and weighed to fraction-of-an-ounce accuracy. The mixture travels by conveyors to huge furnaces. The results: glass tubes for fluorscent lighting.

Freedom Shares Buying Restricted By Treasury

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have been told that there is a limit on the number of Freedom Shares I can buy. Please explain. — M. A.

A. Your informant is correct. Freedom Shares, which can only be purchased with like dollar amounts of E Bonds, are still restricted. The Treasury ruling states that purchases of Freedom Shares are limited to $350 face value per quarter with no more than $1,350 face value to be purchased by an individual in any year. There is likewise some limitation on E Bond purchases, with $20,000 face value the maximum an individual may buy in any year.

Q. Would you advise a widow to switch several hundred shares of American Telephone into one of their bonds for greater income? Please explain the pros and cons. — J. M.

A. There are two debentures among the many that would be suitable. A prospective bond purchaser should keep in mind that increasing money rates force bond prices down. Conversely, declining money rates, which may be ahead, cause bonds to advance. It is also well to look for a substantially discounted purchase price with maturity not too far off.

Telephone 2¾s of 1971 callable at 100 sell to yield 3 per cent, but when held to maturity yield more than 5 per cent. AT&T 3⅜s of 1973 callable at 100.29 sell to yield 3.8 per cent but if held to maturity yield about 6 per cent. Weighed against this is the possibility of an increased dividend on the common.

Q. One year ago we invested $40,000 in three mutual finds, Fundamental, Enterprise and Supervised Growth. We take $200 a month on a withdrawal plan. As we are retired, we are concerned about this investment. Would you advise us? — F. E.

A. Because you have chosen funds with varying objectives you have achieved some measure of protection from downside moves. Enterprise is a performance fund and volatile, but has a fine record. Supervised Growth is a diversified common stock with a good yield and a creditable record. Fundamental has moved sideways over the years.

Fabrics House Opening This Week In San Rafael

Planning to open this week — possibly by tomorrow — is House of Fabrics at 941 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

This location was formerly occupied by Karl Shoes, which moved out seven or eight weeks ago. Since then the store, with 3,500 square feet, has been the scene of extensive remodeling by Edward W. Burgar, Inc.

This is the second House of Fabrics for Marin County — the other being in the Corte Madera Shopping Center. The company has about 150 stores scattered all over the United States and is headquartered in Sun Valley in Southern California.

Local manager will be James Lashbrook. He has been with the company about 18 months and was previously at the Sacramento store. He plans to move to Marin.

Hours will be from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., with evening hours to 9 p.m. to be observed on Wednesdays and Fridays.

Witter

Haver

THE SAN FRANCISCO investment firm Dean Witter and Co., a partnership since its founding in 1924, has become a corporation. John Witter of Ross, formerly senior and managing partner, is now chairman of the board and chairman of the executive committee of the corporation. He joined the company in 1925 and became a partner in 1929. Successively he has been representative in New York, manager of the Pacific northern division and San Francisco office and general managing partner.

Forrest E. Haver of Belvedere is a senior vice president of the corporation. He joined the company in 1946, working in the San Francisco and Los Angeles research departments. He was made manager in Phoenix in 1956, a general partner in 1964 and assistant to John Witter last year. He is a director of the company.

Pence

Wilson

Another Marin resident, Edward E. Pence of Sausalito, is also a senior vice president and a director. He joined Witter when the firm merged with William Cavalier and Co. in 1940. After service in the Army Air Force during World War II he returned to the company as a training director. He is manager of the syndicate department.

RUEL H. WILSON JR. of Novato has been promoted to appraisal officer in Crocker-Citizens National Bank's west Bay region, with headquarters at the San Rafael main office. He joined the bank as a real estate appraiser in 1964 following his retirement form the U. S. Navy and was assigned to San Francisco administrative headquarters.

Chilton County, Ala., is known as the state's "fruit and berry center."

California Leads U.S. In Farming

LOS ANGELES — California accounted for more than 9 per cent of the nation's agricultural sales receipts in 1967.

It remained the foremost farm state for the 20th consecutive year, according to a report by the Economic Research Department of Security Pacific National Bank, Los Angeles.

California retained its leadership despite an $8 million decline in sales. Its farm products sold for $3.97 billion in 1967, down from $4.05 billion in 1966. Second-place Iowa had receipts of just less than $3.5 billion last year.

Iowa's agricultural sales also decreased last year, as did those for all but one of the 10 leading farm states. Wisconsin was the one exception.

On the basis of aggregate tonnage, California farm production decreased by 6.1 per cent, from 37.9 million tons in 1966 to 35.6 million tons last year. The largest aggregate production of vegetable crops in the state's history was offset by a steep reduction in grapes, apples, apricots, peaches and pears.

Unfavorable weather delayed the planting of field crops and resulted in California's smallest deciduous tree fruit harvest since 1958; Sharply reduced egg prices also contributed to the decline, as did lower marketings of feedlot cattle.

About 37,374,600 acres were devoted to the state's 70,000 farms in 1967, according to the bank's research department.

Cattle and calves accounted for nearly $750 million last year. Other large aggregate sales were reported for dairy products ($443 million), hay ($216 million), and cotton ($211 million). Other state commodities that sold for $100 million or more were tomatoes, chicken eggs, grapes, lettuce, nursery products and oranges.

What's the Use?

It's Labor Day

AND, as everybody knows, people don't read ads on the Labor Day, or Easter, or Christmas, Or New Year's. Or in the summer.

UNFORTUNATELY, "everybody" is wrong.

ASK any readership research organization. You'll learn that people don't turn off their minds at Yuletide, Whitsuntide, high tide, or low tide.

ADVERTISING readership doesn't take a dip in the summer.

NEWSPAPER readership doesn't go downhill during the skiing season or the haying season.

WE'VE celebrated many Labor Days at the Independent-Journal. We've seen many summers. And we've learned that readership of both editorial and advertising pages stays at the same high level every day of every week and month of the year.

NO MATTER where you advertise, "season" is no reason to draw a blank with your customers and prospects.

EVEN during holidays, people read.

THANKS for helping us prove it.

And – Oh, Yes,
Have a Good Holiday!

A public hearing on the formation of an underground utility district on Pixley Avenue will be held at the Corte Madera Town Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in town hall.

Also on the agenda is the awarding of a contract for flood control structures and storm drains in the Madera Gardens lagoons and corporation yard site on Lucky Drive. The council will also consider a final plan for a nine-lot subdivision in Hidden Valley Unit 2.

The proposed Tiburon downtown plan, prepared by designer Charles Warren Callister and Associates and modified by planning consultant George Gatter, is scheduled to be adopted tomorrow night by the Tiburon Planning Commission. The commission will meet at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Successor To Enemark To Be Aired

Marin County Board of Supervisors tomorrow will consider appointment of a successor to Fred F. Enemark as president of the Fair-Marin board. Enemark resigned today.

The supervisors in the morning session, beginning at 9 o'clock at the Civic Center, also will continue discussion of dangers of a slide from fill next to Marin General Hospital and amendments suggested to the proposed greivance procedure for county employees.

The main item in the afternoon is a discussion of the countywide sewerage study conducted by Brown and Caldwell, San Francisco consultants. William R. Seeger, general manager of Marin Municipal Water District, and Jerome B. Gilbert, general manager of North Marin Water District, will discuss the Brown and Caldwell report and make recommendations.

Planning and public works directors will submit a proposed contract for a consultant for the balanced transportation study.

Ambulance Bids For Emergency Service In Mail

Bid specifications to provide emergency ambulance service in Marin County have been mailed to two San Rafael firms that now provide service and to three others in San Francisco, County Administrator Alan Bruce said.

They ask for bids on service in two zones, the northern zone to include Novato. Under specifications, no firm will be allowed to serve both zones, and an inter-zone backup is provided, Bruce reported.

Bid specifications were sent to United Ambulance Co. and Doctors Ambulance Co. in San Rafael, and Federal Ambulance, American Ambulance and Mercy Ambulance in San Francisco.

Bids are to be opened Sept. 11, and the county board of supervisors will be asked to award contracts on Sept. 17, Bruce said.

Sign Approved For Auto Store

An illuminated 320-square-foot fascia sign was approved Thursday for Grand Auto store for its new building at the northwest corner of Highway 101 and Vallejo Avenue by the Novato Plan Review Committee, according to Warren Baker, assistant planning director.

The committee approved plans of Leroy A. Winters for remodeling his Golden West Glass and Upholstery store at 906 Grant Avenue and a variance for an 18-square-foot sign, according to Baker.

A 96-square-foot sign was approved for Denny's restaurant now under construction on Highway 101 north of De Long Avenue. The committee, however, cut the requested height of 20 feet to 10 feet, Baker said.

College Buildings To Be Discussed

The Marin Junior College District board will have a workshop session at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Room B of the student center to discuss two proposed new buildings for the Kentfield campus.

The board already has approved the concept of a health services building and a library center and will consider preliminary plans.

The board's regular meeting is at 8 p.m. Thursday in Rooom G-1 of the physical education complex.

Woman Appears In Check Case

A bench warrant for Dana Theresa Burchett, 21, of Piedmont, was revoked Friday in Marin Municipal Court when Miss Burchett appeared to enter a plea of innocent to three charged connected with stolen travelers' checks.

Preliminary hearing was set for 9:30 a.m. Sept. 30. Miss Burchett is charged with trying to pass $200 in travelers' checks that police say are part of a $180,000 shipment stolen in transit in July. She was arrested Aug. 20 in San Anselmo, and is charged with forgery, possessing a completed travelers' check with intent to defraud, and receiving stolen property.

She failed to appear in the San Rafael court Wednesday because she was appearing before a U. S. commissioner in San Francisco to answer federal charges in the case, according to her attorney.

Nixon To Return Thursday For Politicking

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Richard M. Nixon makes a new debut this week as a campaigner in California, the state where his political fortunes have reached extreme peaks and depths over the years.

The last time Nixon campaigned for himself in his native state, he suffered a stinging 388,000-vote defeat for governor at the hands of Democrat Edmund G. Brown on Nov. 6, 1962.

That campaign ended with Nixon's bitter morning-after exchange with reporters when he promised the newsmen, "You won't have Nixon to kick around any longer, because, gentlemen, this is my last press conference . . ."

Six months later Nixon announced he was moving to New York.

Nixon returns this week to a different California, where Republican leaders brim with confidence that the former congressman, senator and vice president will easily carry the state in his new quest for the presidency over Democratic Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

The Republicans are in. The Democrats are out. Republicans are united following the 1966 GOP California sweep and Democrats are doing the fighting among themselves, split in particular over the administration's conduct of the war in Vietnam.

Friday, Nixon is scheduled to ride in a motorcade down San Francisco's Montgomery Street in his first 1968 campaign appearance in his native state. A rousing welcome is forecast. He is to arrive in the state on Thursday for a rally in Santa Clara, prior to his San Francisco visit.

Republican state chairman James W. Halley said in an interview, "Interest in his coming is great. He's in a strong position here."

"Nixon is popular today because he presents an opportunity for new, sound management . . . People very strongly want a change. They want to get away from the policies and failures of the last four years. Nixon has articulated very well."

Halley said people want a man who "can run the shop."

Halley declined to discuss the difference between 1968 and 1962, when Nixon bowed out of state politics with his acrimonious statements. Victorious Gov. Edmund G. Brown watched them on television and forecast, "Nixon is going to regret all his life that he made that speech."

But another top California Republican, who declined to be identified by name, said he doubts many Californians will remember the 1962 Nixon speech when they vote this fall.

"I think that his courage in continuing to pursue an able political course is the main thing that stands out in people's minds," this Republican said. His record since 1962 as a party spokesman and tireless campaigner for other Republicans—"all of this shows a steadiness and courage," he added.

GOP politicians in the state, some of whom fought with Nixon when he was a California party leader, are solidly behind Nixon now, the source said.

Nixon came to California immediately after the Republican National Convention and spent a week at San Diego planning his campaign and making peace with the other contenders for the Republican nomination.

Most of his time was spent in seclusion and there were no real campaign appearances.

During that week, he won a firm pledge of support from Gov. Ronald Reagan and apparently with it the backing of the wealthy conservative businessmen who helped catapult Reagan into the governorship and pushed his futile candidacy for president.

A key to Nixon's good relations with California Republican leaders this year has been Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch, former aide to Nixon as vice president and his 1960 presidential campaign manager.

Although Finch and Reagan have had their differences in policies, Finch helped hold Reagan's 86-vote favorite son delegation to the convention together — staving off possible defections to Nixon.

This will pay dividends for Nixon, nominated without California's votes, during the general election campaign in the form of a united party in California.

There has been little need for "piecing together" the party following the June primary and the convention, Halley said.

This means Nixon need not worry about keeping his own party together and trying to avoid being caught in the middle of party strife, or refereeing disputes. Thus, he can devote his full efforts to appealing for support from disgruntled Democrats and independents who will hold the key to the election.

Registered Democrats outnumber Republicans about 3-2 in California, but Reagan and other Republicans were able to win the support of many of them in 1966.

Burying Of Dirty Nuclear Waste Liked

By SCIENCE SERVICE

Nuclear reactors, becoming continually more important in electric power production, develop radioactive wastes that remain dangerous for years. While some of these radioactive isotopes can be used, the major portion will have to be disposed of.

One way of getting rid of nuclear wastes is to bury them. By digging a well deep into non-porous rock, such as shale, an area can be reached in which the waste material can be pumped. With high enough pressure, the deep rock will break up and the radioactive wastes be absorbed in the fissures.

In the process of fracturing, however, the earth formation above the well sometimes is moved so that openings are formed which could lead the deep wastes to water supplies or even to the surface.

To keep the waste products safely below, a newly patented method proposes mixing the radioactive material with cement so that it stays put.

Association Trains For 'Back To Life'

Not a crackpot outfit, the organization's 200 members are physicians and surgeons who enroll for an intensive course in methods of reviving persons whose hearts have stopped beating.

Herbal Remedies Remain Very Popular In Mexico

MEXICO CITY (SS) — A wild reed called lagrimas de San Pedro (tears of St. Peter) has recently been in demand throughout Mexico and abroad as a cure for diabetes.

Christian Felix Hernandez, a government official, discovered the reed; it was being used in Veracruz not only for diabetes but reduction and elimination of gallstones.

The Mexican Department of Health has undertaken research to determine the therapeutic properties of the reed and whether it can be used commercially.

According to Veracruz health authorities, a demand for the plant has suddenly sprung up. More than 5,000 Mexicans have obtained it, and as a result of the magazine article requests also came from some South American countries and France and Germany as well.

Despite advances in modern medicine in Mexico, the use of medicinal herbs and plants is widespread. Every market in Mexico has one or more stands where herbalists prescribe natural teas.

Discounting the doubtful love potions still in use in Mexico, most clients consult herbalists for a variety of everyday ailments.

Seeds from a tree in Guerrero State, called Ziricua, said to cure various types of skin diseases.

Three Guerrero plants, known as cancer herb, cancerina and coachalalate, all used against cancer.

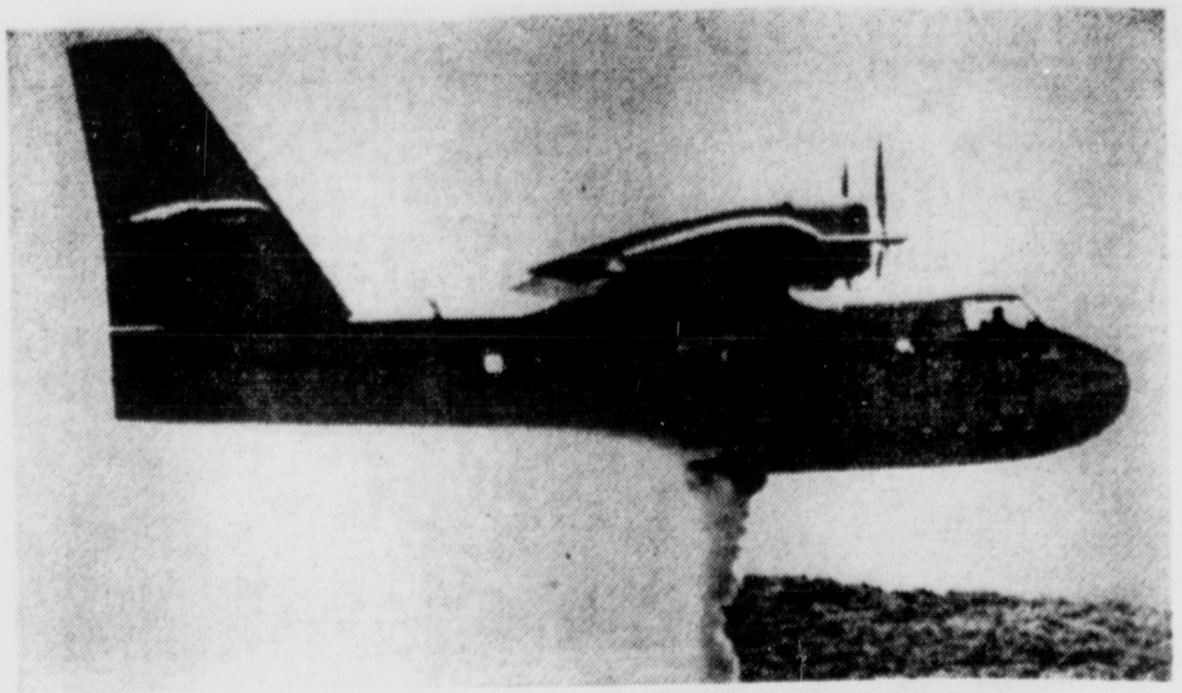
Who Was That Man In The Soup?

BOURNEMOUTH, England (UPI)—"Waiter, there's a man in my soup!"

Denise Lyons, 25, made the outcry when part of the ceiling collapsed in the restaurant where she was sipping leek soup, and Jimmy Inglis landed on her table.

Jimmy, 19, was not seriously injured.



BOMBING WITH WATER

The world's first aircraft designed especially for water bombing of forest fires, the Canadair CL-215 drops six tons of water from its storage tanks. The amphibian is built by Canadair Limited, a subsidiary of General Dynamics in Montreal. The plane can fly to a lake near the fire, skim along the surface at 70 miles an hour and scoop up its load of water in 12 seconds. (UPI Telephoto).

Policemen Want Fashion

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—Allegheny County officials are going to call in a fashion designer to get more style into the uniforms their policemen wear.

"It's about time we quit putting those guys into a calvary uniform," said Commissioner William R. Hunt. "They are riding around in cars these days, not on horses."

County policemen complain that present coats are so heavy they can hardly get them on and they say their gray felt fedora looks "as though it was inherited from a World War I doughboy."

The Grass Carp Could Help Pond Troubles

CORVALLIS, Ore. (UPI)—Ctenopharyngodon idellus is very useful. It feeds on undesirable water weeds and makes a pretty good snack itself.

It is a fish, more commonly called a "grass carp" and currently the subject of experiments at Oregon State University.

AS FOOD FISH?

Scientists hope to determine if it can clean up our ponds and lakes by eating aquatic weeds. They also hope to find out if it would be widely accepted as a food fish.

Dr. Carl Bond, OSU fish biologist, said the fish is a native of the Amur River in Asia and was brought here for experiment.

"The fish is widely used for food in Asia and is considered a delicacy in many countries," he said. "It is quite fat and an excellent source of protein, and an astonishingly fast grower."

As a food fish, it may suffer from the reputation of its distrant American cousin, the carp, considered a scavenger and not good food.

PREFERRED FOOD

"We in America have some ridiculous criteria by which we judge this sort of thing," said Erland Juntenen, Dr. Bond's assistant. "In Europe the plain old carp is a preferred food fish and is expensively prepared."

The grass carp could be a very useful creature, Juntenen said, if it can be made to reproduce in this country. That, so far, has been one of the setbacks.

Also, it is not yet known if it has natural enemies here, or if once it does start to reproduce, it might not become a nuisance.

Eighteen months ago, Dr. Bond brought 100 of the fish to Oregon as fingerlings. Since then they have grown more than 24 times their original size and now average more than three pounds each.

"By last fall," Dr. Bond said, "these fish had eaten all the pondweed in a half-acre experimental pond."

Pondweed appears to be the preferred diet, but other foods are snails, algae and American waterweed.

SERIOUS PEST

Water weeds are the most serious weed pest in Oregon farm ponds. Other states have similar problems.

Juntenen said he doubts if the grass carp will ever become a sports fish because it is a vegetable eater and probably wouldn't strike at a lure.

"Whether it will or will not be useful, we don't know," he said. He said the experiment is just that, an experiment. They are not stocking ponds to see what will happen, but just one pond under controlled conditions.

The fish doesn't look like the American carp. It is more "steamlined" according to Juntenen, more cylindrical, brownish in color—"a rather good looking fish," he said.

Aussie Snails Aid Blood Tests

CANBERRA (SS) — Several thousand garden snails from Australia have been sent to Dr. Tom Thomson of the North London Blood Bank for use in providing a reagent, or substance for typing blood.

English snails are also being used to test for the Group A factor, which scientists discovered can be found as well from snail blood as from human. Because of a shortage of snails in England, the New South Wales Blood Transfusion Service is coming to the aid of the London typing laboratories.

Sensation Of Light 'Seen' By Persons Long Blind

By SCIENCE SERVICE

LONDON — Steps toward electrical stimulation of the brain that could permit the blind to read are reported by two University of Cambridge, England, scientists.

A number of electronic experiments in the United States and other parts of the world have given hope to the blind by showing that the visual cortex does not wholly lose its functional capacity even after years without visual input. The latest report is published in an issue of the Journal of Physiology in London.

Dr. G. S. Brindley and Dr. W. S. Lewin, after trying the idea on the motor cortex of 14 baboons, attached an array of electrodes connected to radio receivers in the right hemisphere of the brain of a 52-year-old blind woman. She was stimulated to experience sensations of light in the left half of the visual field.

Safety of the implant was demonstrated with the baboons, in which a fibrous membrane grew to separate it from the brain and its covering.

The model contains 80 receivers, but the researchers expect to increase the number of electrodes to at least 200 per hemisphere, which hopefully would permit a blind person to see printed letters. The present model permits sensations of a very small spot of white light.

Poisoning Leads To Warning

LONDON (SS) — The discovery of a pupil with lead poisoning in a British school for the blind has resulted in a warning to all authorities of such schools.

Totally blind children rely mainly on a sense of touch to identify objects around them, but many of the partially sighted who can differentiate light from dark do not have the same highly developed sense of touch. They often use the mouth, lips and tongue as an aid in identifying objects — a habit called discriminatory pica.

Pica is defined as a craving for unnatural articles of food, as in pregnancy, or when a child eats mud.

The researchers found others in the school with the same habit and with high levels of lead in their blood. The children had used arithmetic and algebra type composed of metal that contained 65 per cent lead, 25 per cent antimony and 10 per cent tin. Each type has raised dots on one face and a raised bar on the other face, which when set at different angles in a frame represent different numbers. They had been using the tongue to identify each type. An abacus system is being substituted.

Dr. A. C. Ames of Lewisham Hospital, London, and Dr. P. N. Swift, consultant pediatrician of Farnborough, Orpington and Sevenoaks Hospital, Kent, reported the findings in the British Medical Journal.

Snoring Threat

LONDON (UPI) — The marriages of 1.5 million British couples are threatened by snoring, according to Dr. Ian Robin, an ear, nose and throat specialist. Robin says 50 per cent of snorers could be cured and another 30 per cent helped.

Russ, U.S. Foreign Aid Advisers Coexist Well

Special to the I-J

LOS ANGELES — Russian and U.S. foreign aid programs in Afghanistan exemplify peaceful co-existence at its best, according to the U.S. ambassador there, Robert G. Neumann, who is on leave from his post as professor of political science at the University of California at Los Angeles.

In a press conference on the UCLA campus, Neumann reported that the relationship between Russian and U.S. diplomats and technicians is cordial, with frequent informal discussions about Afghanistan's development problems.

He attributes this success partly to the complementary nature of the two country's programs, and added, "neither of us tries to outdo the other."

American assistance is mainly in the areas of education and agriculture, along with various programs to encourage the growth of private enterprise.

He reported that America's educational aid program there is the largest in the world, adding that the number of schools in Afghanistan has doubled in the last year and a half.

Total U.S. aid to Afghanistan has been about $400 million, at a rate of about $30 million per year. Neumann pointed out that the U.S. gives no military aid to the country, while Russia has an extensive military aid program.

Seat Belts Can Save Many Lives

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—More than a fourth of the persons killed in motor vehicle accidents in Iowa in 1967 would have been saved if they had been wearing seat belts, a survey by the Department of Public Safety says.

Safety Commissioner Jack M. Fulton said of the 814 persons who lost their lives in traffic crashes in 1967, 240 could have been saved if they had worn seat belts.

Television Measle Cure Is Reported

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—A cure for measles—the kind that affects color television sets—has been found by Westinghouse Electric Corp. The measles are electronic ones which are characterized by surface blotches.

Measling is caused by absorption of small amounts of moisture by the plastic material, called a laminate, used as a "base" of a printed circuit. A new copper-clad laminate cures such measling.

FINAL PHASE?

Beatles Learning Of Fickle Public

LONDON (UPI)—For six years the Beatles have soared above the entertainment world as millionaires with the Midas touch in music—but now the rocket is beginning to descend and four unhappy young men are learning for the first time how fickle is the public.

The transition from doing everything right in the eyes of their fans to doing almost everything wrong has been painful. Some British commentators have predicted this could be the final phase of their meteoric career.

"Is this the end?" the headlines ask.

STILL EXCITING

The answer is that the Beatles are still in the most exciting group in the pop field, in the forefront of the development of the modern song, musically and lyrically. In the recording studios they still have the old magic.

It is in the world outside that they now realize how much they miss their discoverer and manager, Brian Epstein, who died just a year ago. It was Epstein who protected their image, cushioned them against the shocks of too much fame and money too soon.

Without him they have been too frank about their business mistakes and their personal lives. They have said and done things he would never have permitted to be known outside the tight little world he constructed around them.

And when they did sometimes escaped his vigilance—as when John Lennon said the Beatles were more popular than Christ—it was Epstein who expertly repaired the public relations damage. Since that uproar two years ago Beatles fans (and stockholders in their music company) have had a lot to think about.

LSD TALK

There was the time they talked of taking LSD, their flight to the Himalayan foothills for transcendental meditation, the failure of their self-made film, "Magical Mystery Tour" for mass television audiences.

Once the British press flocked to record—rarely disapprovingly—every Beatle thought and feeling. Now the same press says:

"I believe the great love affair with the Beatles is over"—The Sun. "The fact is that they had the world on its knees to them and they boobed. And it's sad" — the Daily Mail. "Now, after the cool reception of the (cartoon movie) Yellow Submarine, it may again be asked whether the yare not on the downbeat"—the Mail again. "It's difficult to relate some of these recent Beatle activities with the instant understanding and acclaim received by their music. Can they be the same people?"—Disc and Music Echo.
